8,000 Marines Now Stationed In South Viet

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) — A new landing of U.S. Marines brought the total number of leathernecks in South Viet Nam today to more than 8,000 guarding American installations and personnel.

Light rain fell as a battalion of 1,400 Marines moved ashore from the transports Henrico, Union and Cook and the new amphibious assault ship Van-couver.

A landing-party commander said the operation was routine.

Rain and low clouds delayed for several hours movement of the Marines by helicopter to Phu Bai airport, 35 miles to the north near the city of Hue. The weather lifted late in the morning, and the troop movement began.

About the same time government troops launched a helicopter assault on a company of Viet Cong about 12 miles south of the Marines' landing beach.

Initial reports said a government ranger and five Viet Cong were killed, and two rangers were wounded.

The Viet Cong made no attempt to interfere with the Marine landing. Three government rangers were reported wounded and several guerrillas killed during a clearing operation in the area Tuesday.

Taking up positions around Hue, the new arrivals will guard an important air strip there and provide security for approaches to bustling Da Nang air base, the staging area for many of the U.S. and Vietnamese planes striking against North Viet Nam.

The Marines waded ashore, took up defensive positions on the beach and then began to relax.

Some of the Marines in full combat gear took photographs of their buddies.

They declined to give their names or hometowns, saying they were under orders not to talk to newsmen.

Arrival of the 3rd Battalion of the 4th Regiment, formerly stationed at Hawaii, put four battalions of Marines in the Da Nang-Hue area, in the extreme north of this war-torn country.

U.S. Convinced
Foe Feels Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials said today American bombing attacks in North Viet Nam are causing substantial trouble for the Hanoi government and are interfering with Communist infiltration of men and weapons into South Viet Nam.

They said the raids are affecting morale and in time will damage the prestige of President Ho Chi Minh's government.

Just a fortnight ago, Washington's official assessment of the effect of the raids was about the opposite. Officials were saying they doubted the Communists' ability to infiltrate men and supplies into Viet Nam had been crippled.

Just a week ago, exactly two months after the series of bombings had been launched, U.S. authorities were reported still awaiting some sign that the attacks were "turning Hanoi's mind around."

The revised estimate of the results of the steadily intensified bombings was given to American editors and broadcasters attending a national foreign-policy conference at the State Department.

Officials also told them what Washington has been saying almost from the start — that the raids are having a dramatic effect on boosting morale in South Viet Nam and that before they were begun there was a feeling close to despair in South Viet Nam.

State and Defense Department officials still do not foresee Chinese Communist intervention in the Viet Nam war.

At present, Peking and Hanoi apparently are working together closely. But this collaboration could change if North Viet Nam decides the punishment it is receiving from air attacks is not worth its efforts on behalf of the Viet Cong, officials said.

Friendly Battle Of Wits Ends Up In Sticky Draw

WASHINGTON COURTHOUSE, Ohio (AP)—A friendly battle of wits between a local pharmacist and a music store operator seems to have ended in a tie.

The pharmacist bought a television set from the music store owner with whom he had been carrying on a needling campaign over the years. The buyer complained about tardy delivery, purposely delayed payment and finally remitted the purchase price of $178 in dimes, nickels and pennies in jugs filled with colored water.

The music man owed the pharmacist $9 for sundries.

That bill, too, has now been paid—with small change in a jar of honey.

Did Washington's Ghost Punish Lincoln Assassin?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Service, which is restoring the old theater to its 1865 state, has no means of knowing whether the encounter with the picture of the Father of his Country led to Booth's fractured leg. But he reflects that if this were true there would be a certain grim historic justice to it.

One hundred years ago to night, John Wilkes Booth, hard drinking actor, stole into a box where Lincoln was enjoying the play "Our American Cousin," and shot him in the back of the head. The wounded president was carried across the street to a boarding house, where he died the following morning.

After firing the fatal shot, Booth stabbed a military aide. Then he vaulted over the balustrade of the box to the stage 11 feet below.

In his jump, one of the spurs Booth was wearing caught on a picture of Washington which decorated the box. It also tore the edge of a flag draped above the picture.

Appalachia Fund Buildup Is Doubtful

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration witnesses have asked a Senate subcommittee to restore part of the $18.3 million trimmed by the House from funds to launch the Appalachian Development Program.

The House approved $344.3 million of the $362.6 million asked by President Johnson to start the program. Witnesses Tuesday asked the Senate group to put back two-thirds of the reduction in a supplemental appropriation bill.

But subcommittee Chairman John O. Pastore, D-R. I., wasn't completely swayed by their arguments.

"These are at best estimates of the cost," he said. "We'll have another bill in July. Why not wait until then when we will have more information?"

Differences in the Senate and House appropriations bills for the program will be ironed out by a special conference committee of members from both chambers.

Mississippi River Hits Record Flood Levels

St. Paul Fights Against Deluge

Airport Under 6 Feet of Water

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Disaster workers, relief agencies and thousands of evacuees watched apprehensively today as flood waters, dangerously ice crusted, swirled to record highs in this bustling city on the Mississippi River.

The river had moved out of its banks over wide sections south of St. Paul, sending hundreds of residents to higher ground. Scores of large industrial plants were surrounded by muddy, ice-covered water.

Downtown airport, east of the city's towering skyscrapers, lay under six feet of water while freight yards, on slightly higher ground adjoining the airport, were covered to a depth of two feet.

Dikes, whose height had been extended with plywood paneling, held back most of the Mississippi but hourly the muddy waters rose to an expected crest of 27 feet Friday. It was at 24 feet today, nearly two feet above the 1952 record.

Gov. Karl Rolvaag estimated that this year's floods in Minnesota, starting 10 days ago, had already caused more than $20 million damage and before the waters recede 21,000 persons will have been made homeless. Forty-five of Minnesota's 37 counties have been declared disaster areas.

Eleven deaths have been attributed to the floods so far.

President Johnson was visiting the tornado and flood-stricken sections of the Midwest today, moving into the St. Paul area at midday with members of Congress and representatives of federal disaster-control agencies.

The Mississippi River, a tourist attraction at its source 200 miles to the north because a child can leap over it, presented a growing threat to St. Paul and dozens of communities downstream.

The St. Croix and Chippewa rivers, and scores of smaller streams and lakes, ice-jammed and swollen with rain and melting snow, join the Mississippi below St. Paul.

Forecast Joseph Strub of the Weather Bureau said the waters feeding the Mississippi downstream "all will exceed the 1952 flood by 2 to 3 feet" and all "necessary precautions should be taken."

South and west of the Twin Cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul, the Mississippi and Minnesota rivers, which feed into the Mississippi, had ravaged dozens of communities. Mankato, Henderson, Chaska, Shakopee.

Man Plays Hunch, Saves Tot in Fire

CLEVELAND (AP)—Edward Donay, 52, saw smoke Tuesday, called firemen, then, acting on a hunch, broke into the burning house across the street in suburban Garfield Heights.

"At first I didn't think anyone was inside," said Donay. But he went into the house "just to make sure" and rescued a sobbing 3-year-old boy who had been left alone.

Donay said he heard the child, Brian Roth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. Roth Sr., sobbing when he broke into the smoke-filled front room. Donay moved about on his hands and knees until he found Brian lying on the floor. The boy was treated for smoke inhalation at Marymount Hospital.

Pickaway Tornado Damage Is Estimated at $1 Million

Pickaway County's tornado damage have been estimated at $1,000,000.

Local area utilities are operating at 100 per cent today. Telephone service has been restored in the Ashville vicinity.

Robert Keatley, local manager for General Telephone, said 95 per cent of the outages were corrected by yesterday evening. The remainder was finished by noon today.

Both the telephone company and South-Central Electric have not yet compiled figures that would give an indication of storm loss. Both utilities noted it would be several days before all work is completed, although service has been restored.

CIVIL DEFENSE officials have reported more than $42 million in damage to private and public property in 19 Ohio counties from the Palm Sunday tornado disaster.

The office of Gov. James A. Rhodes said the figures would be used in a preliminary report to the Federal Office of Emergency Planning for aid to stricken Ohioans.

Once Around Roundtown

THE PICKAWAY Shrine Club is most happy with a special "thank you" letter received a couple of days ago.

The letter was from the "teen" class of the Pickaway County School for Trainable Retarded Children. It expressed the youngsters' sincere appreciation for the Shrine Club's program that enabled them to attend the Shrine Circus in Columbus several days ago. . . . Youths from the Children's Home also made the trip. . . .

The appreciative communication, addressed to "good friends of the Pickaway Shrine Club, noted it was a big day for the children — one in which they learned a lot. . . .

To point up their thanks, they even sent a group picture of themselves. . . . "You can look at us and pretend we are saying THANK YOU," the letter read.

Their letter, written with the assistance of teacher Leora Sayre, was prepared on a typewriter given the class by the local Paul Johnson firm.

The note was sent to Roger Bowers of the local Shrine Club. Each of the youngsters signed it.

MRS. KAY Boltenhouse and her four children have returned from what they term a "wonderful visit" in Newfoundland. . . . Mrs. Boltenhouse departed here Feb. 1 for a visit to the Canadian homeland she had not seen for 13 years. . . . The trip was made possible by many residents of this community who collected the money to pay the family's travel expenses. . . .

Mrs. Boltenhouse again expressed deep gratitude to the many people who worked diligently to make the trip possible. . . . More than $841 was collected through individual kindness. . . .

Mrs. Boltenhouse, describing her two-month visit with her mother and relatives, said it is hard to define the pleasure and joy the trip provided her and her children.

She said the children "just loved" Newfoundland. . . . She said the family's departure Monday was a sad one. . . .

The children — Jimmy, Jerry, Larry and Kathy — were all enrolled in school at her hometown of Lomond during the June-Budd. "Then, Sunday, as

Local Red Cross Is Providing Aid

The Pickaway County Chapter, American Red Cross, has provided assistance for two area families stricken by Sunday night's tornado.

Other families suffering storm-caused emergencies they cannot overcome themselves are urged to contact the local office at Watt and Pickaway Sts. Mrs. Etha Mae Wolford, the chapter's executive secretary, said registration for such aid is now being handled here.

Mrs. Wolford said housing and furniture have been provided for one family. Money has been allocated to purchase clothing for another.

The Pickaway Red Cross program is geared to provide housing, furniture and clothing for those needing individual assistance.

ACCORDING to Mrs. Wolford, a case worker from the National Red Cross office is due here in a few days. He will go over the cases registered and established an immediate aid program in addition to what has already been provided on a local level.

Mrs. Wolford pointed out that the Red Cross aid is not a part of the federal assistance which is expected to be approved for Ohio. In view of this, she said area persons afflicted should register now for immediate help.

The assistance offered here is part of the National Red Cross Disaster Aid Program. The money is made available through the National office.

The local executive secretary also noted that contributions will be accepted at her office. The money will be added to funds needed to carry out the disaster aid project.

Judge Condemns Youthful Bigotry

CINCINNATI (AP) — Observing that "bigotry is no prank," Juvenile Court Judge Benjamin Schwartz Tuesday heard two 17-year-old youths admit they had burned a cross in the front yard of a home, then ordered them held at the city's youth detention center.

"I want to give them a jolt, a cold shower," he said, in waving aside a plea for leniency entered in their behalf by Ira Roberts, whose house was a target for the cross-burners.

"I want this to be a deterrent to the other people in the community who might want to do the same vicious, cowardly thing," he continued, "I want to stamp this thing out, and right now."

Mr. Hoo Hoo Owl Prefers Pampering; He's Captured

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Mr. Hoo Hoo — the owl who loved not wisely but too well — is back where he started: in captivity.

His love for food cost him his freedom, and almost his life.

The owl was reared as a pet, then freed. But instead of catching mice he hunted handouts — especially from young girls.

Trouble is, he's a huge bird, with wings spanning almost four feet.

At the sight of him swooping down on the local playground — seeking a friendly shoulder and a cracker — the children would scurry, shrieking, under the shelter of parked cars. Six girls were scratched by the owl's claws.

Laguna's Bluebird Canyon, where Mr. Hoo Hoo lived in a eucalyptus tree, seethed with contention as bird lovers and parents clashed over Hoo Hoo's habits.

"The man from the animal shelter said the order had gone through for the game warden to destroy Mr. Hoo Hoo," said June-Budd. "Then, Sunday, as we were getting ready to leave for church, we saw the owl sitting on a fence.

"My husband just walked up and grabbed him. He knows my husband, or he'd never have let him get that close—Mr. Hoo Hoo wouldn't let the animal shelter men anywhere near him.

Once before Otto Budd had caught the owl, took it 20 miles into the hills, and released it — but found the owl home again next morning. He is afraid to try it again, for fear Mr. Hoo Hoo might fly home once more — for a date with the game warden's shotgun. Budd plans to keep the owl in the 10-by-10-foot cage.

Neither fame nor captivity has altered Mr. Hoo Hoo's unwavering stare. He seems, within the narrow gamut of owl emotion, to have found happiness: the children of Bluebird Canyon now love him.

Youth Pills Are Offered Older Women

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Older women can regain or keep many of the appearances and feelings of youth by taking a programmed daily series of pills after menopause, says a Michigan physician.

The hormone replacement therapy series — scheduled-packed like the pill used for contraception — is up for approval of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, Dr. Francis P. Rhoades of Detroit said. "It will cost far less than a cocktail and do them a lot more good," commented Dr. Rhoades, who estimated mass production could cut the cost to about 10 cents a day.

The menopausal woman, he explained, lacks endocrine secretions which create the feminine characteristics — she is essentially a castrate.

Changes that occur include loss of strength, feminine curves and zest. There are increases in blood pressure, bone brittleness, mental and emotional troubles, and in some cases coronary disease.

"Adequate supplemental estrogen and progesterone therapy will prevent or minimize disorders of the menopause," Dr. Rhoades said.

He advised that post-menopausal women take the pills the rest of their lives.

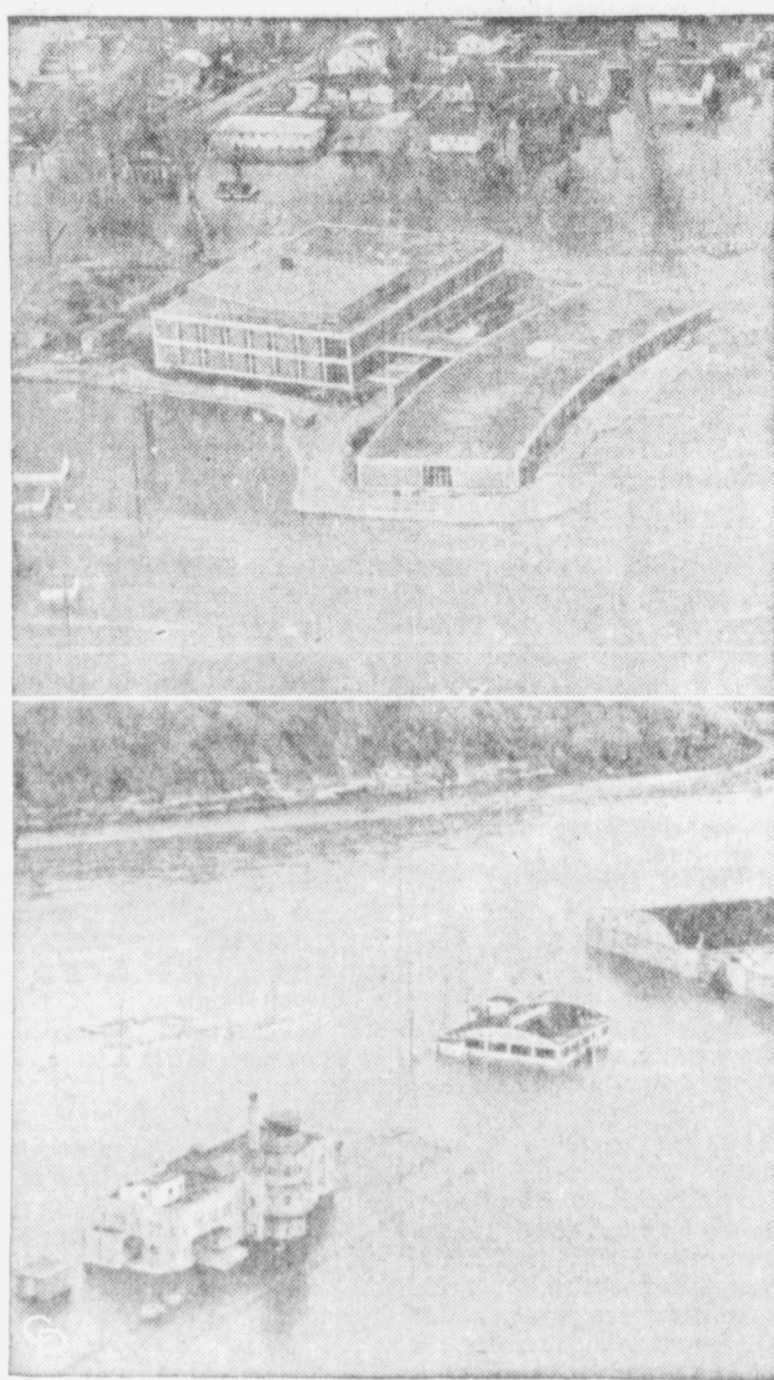

Teachers Urged To Give Fewer F's

Dr. Cheney, director of Philadelphia school research, has urged teachers to give fewer F's and more D's.

He says pupils who get an F grade and repeat a term probably will drop out as soon as they can. But if they pass year after year with D's, they eventually might learn something.

Dr. Cheney made the statement in a report to the Board of Education.

Mr. Hoo Hoo Owl Prefers

Pampering; He's Captured

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (AP)

—Mr. Hoo Hoo — the owl who loved not wisely but too well —

we were getting ready to leave for church, we saw the owl sitting on a fence.

"My husband just walked up and grabbed him. He knows my husband, or he'd never have let him get that close—Mr. Hoo Hoo wouldn't let the animal shelter men anywhere near him.

Once before Otho Budd had caught the owl, took it 20 miles into the hills, and released it — but found the owl home again next morning. He is afraid to try it again, for fear Mr. Hoo Hoo might fly home once more — for a date with the game warden's shotgun. Budd plans to keep the owl in the 10-by-10-foot cage.

Neither fame nor captivity has altered Mr. Hoo Hoo's unwavering stare. He seems, within the narrow gamut of owlish emotion, to have found happiness: the children of Bluebird Canyon now live him.

"All the children come to see him, now he's in a cage," Mrs. Budd explained. "They hoot at him, and he hoots back, and he eats out of their hands."

Johnson Surveys Disaster Areas

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—President Johnson told citizens of flood-ravaged Minnesota today he intends to see what the federal government can do to provide prompt and effective assistance to victims of the flooding.

The President flew here from the South Bend-Elkhart area in Indiana after touring scenes of destruction left by Palm Sunday's death-dealing tornadoes.

The President said he knows it is the will of the American people that assistance be provided by the government to the citizens and the communities faced with the task of rebuilding.

"Our purpose is to see what the federal government can do to provide promptly and effectively the appropriate assistance available under the established federal program to assist the families and communities suffering from these natural disasters," Johnson said.

The President's plane left the South Bend airport at 11:08 a.m. EST, falling nearly an hour behind schedule while viewing the Indiana destruction.

"I'm sorry," was all he could say to the victims in the Elkhart area.

Johnson, picking his way through splintered wood, broken glass and tumbled cinder blocks, walked through an area of neighboring Dunlap where 27 persons died in a twister estimated to have had winds up to 300 miles an hour.

Accompanying Johnson as he visited this worst-hit section of the Midwest were state and local officials, who got his promise of quick, effective and efficient federal aid in rebuilding.

Harvey Laird, 55, one victim Johnson talked to at Dunlap, said, "Everything is wiped out."

"I'm sorry," was all Johnson could say.

Johnson, who is heading on to inspect flood damage in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area and more tornado havoc near Toledo, Ohio, made a series of stops in the Elkhart area.

Before leaving Indiana to make an aerial inspection of affected sections of Illinois and Wisconsin en route to Minnesota, Johnson stopped at a rescue center at the Concord Township fire station, where he greeted volunteer workers, ate a doughnut and drank a cup of coffee.

LBJ To Visit Toledo Area

Speedy Federal Aid Expected

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—President Johnson's personal inspection of the rubble and heartbreak of the Toledo tornado-disaster area today was to carry a promise of speedy federal aid for those who suffered damage.

The President's announcement to tour this area—as part of an inspection of flood and tornado damage in six midwestern states—came Tuesday night shortly after all areas of Ohio that suffered damage were declared disaster areas.

It followed by several hours an appeal by Gov. James A. Rhodes that the President inspect the stricken Ohio areas "to speed aid to the suffering." Johnson, accompanied by congressmen and senators, was scheduled to land at Toledo Express Airport at 2:05 p.m. He was to be met by Rhodes, and the group was to inspect hard-hit suburban areas by motorcade.

From Toledo, the President was expected to return to Washington at 3:30 p.m.

The tour comes as the thousands of homeless began picking up the pieces left by Sunday night's violent tornadoes.

The federal disaster area declaration will help ease their suffering. It permits owners of homes, businesses, churches and charitable institutions whose property was damaged or destroyed to apply to the Small Business Administration for reconstruction or rehabilitation loans at 3 per cent interest.

Rhodes had asked President Johnson to declare four of the hardest hit counties—Lucas, Lorain, Allen and Hancock—as disaster areas. He indicated that 18 others which suffered heavy damage might be included in a later request for similar designation.

But the SBA included all areas of the state damaged by the tornadoes in the disaster declaration.

The 18 additional counties included are Cuyahoga, Delaware, Fairfield, Harrison, Jefferson, Knox, Licking, Medina, Mercer, Morrow, Muskingum, Perry, Pickaway, Seneca, Shelby, Trumbull, Union and Van Wert.

An aide to the governor, John McElroy, said the first "close" damage estimate should be ready today. The superintendent of the State Highway Patrol, Col. Anson B. Cook, said earlier that damage would be "at least $50 million."

The confirmed death toll in the state remained at 54 with more than 350 injured still in hospitals.

pee, and Savage, larger towns in their paths, were largely covered by flood waters.

Dozens of homes were evacuated along the St. Croix from Stillwater southward to where the river joins the Mississippi, near Hastings.

The Minnesota stood at nearly 28 feet at Mankato, still about 7 feet above flood stage, but slowly receding. Last week the river forced nearly 3,500 persons from their homes in Mankato and North Mankato.

The Northern State's Power Co. plant at Red Wing was ringed with thousands of sandbags piled up to a height of 22 feet in anticipation of the Mississippi's crest of 18 feet expected in the city next week.

The Crow River's high water at Delano burst a dam and sent some 300 persons to higher ground. The river's crest, expected Saturday, will top the 1952 record.

In the East Grand Forks area the Red River was expected to crest Friday at 43 feet, 15 feet above flood stage. At Moorhead, the river level was nearly 28 feet, or 11 feet above flood stage and dozens of homes lay under water. At Breckenridge the river was receding and lay two feet under flood stage.

Showers and thundershowers were forecast for most of Minnesota today, with temperatures ranging between 45 and 55 degrees.

Johnson Surveys Disaster Areas

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—President Johnson told citizens of flood-ravaged Minnesota today he intends to see what the federal government can do to provide prompt and effective assistance to victims of the flooding.

The President flew here from the South Bend-Elkhart area in Indiana after touring scenes of destruction left by Palm Sunday's death-dealing tornadoes.

The President said he knows it is the will of the American people that assistance be provided by the government to the citizens and the communities afflicted with the task of rebuilding.

"Our purpose is to see what the federal government can do to provide promptly and effectively the appropriate assistance available under the established federal program to assist the families and communities suffering from these natural disasters," Johnson said.

The President's plane left the South Bend airport at 11:08 a.m. EST, falling nearly an hour behind schedule while viewing the Indiana destruction.

"I'm sorry," was all he could say to the victims in the Elkhart area.

Johnson, picking his way through splintered wood, broken glass and tumbled cinder blocks, walked through an area of neighboring Dunlap where 27 persons died in a twister estimated to have had winds up to 300 miles an hour.

Accompanying Johnson as he visited this worst-hit section of the Midwest were state and local officials, who got his promise of quick, effective and efficient federal aid in rebuilding.

Harvey Laird, 55, one victim Johnson talked to at Dunlap, said, "Everything is wiped out."

"I'm sorry," was all Johnson could say.

Johnson, who is heading on to inspect flood damage in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area and more tornado havoc near Toledo, Ohio, made a series of stops in the Elkhart area.

Before leaving Indiana to make an aerial inspection of affected sections of Illinois and Wisconsin en route to Minnesota, Johnson stopped at a rescue center at the Concord Township fire station, where he greeted volunteer workers, ate a doughnut and drank a cup of coffee.

LBJ To Visit Toledo Area

Speedy Federal Aid Expected

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—President Johnson's personal inspection of the rubble and heart-break of the Toledo tornado-disaster area today was to carry a promise of speedy federal aid for those who suffered damage.

The President's announcement to tour this area—as part of an inspection of flood and tornado damage in six midwestern states—came Tuesday night shortly after all areas of Ohio that suffered damage were declared disaster areas.

It followed by several hours an appeal by Gov. James A. Rhodes that the President inspect the stricken Ohio areas "to speed aid to the suffering." Johnson, accompanied by congressmen and senators, was scheduled to land at Toledo Express Airport at 2:05 p.m. He was to be met by Rhodes, and the group was to inspect hard-hit suburban areas by motorcade.

From Toledo, the President was expected to return to Washington at 3:30 p.m.

The tour comes as the thousands of homeless began picking up the pieces left by Sunday night's violent tornadoes.

The federal disaster area declaration will help ease their suffering. It permits owners of homes, businesses, churches and charitable institutions whose property was damaged or destroyed to apply to the Small Business Administration for reconstruction or rehabilitation loans at 3 per cent interest.

Rhodes had asked President Johnson to declare four of the hardest hit counties — Lucas, Lorain, Allen and Hancock—as disaster areas. He indicated that 18 others which suffered heavy damage might be included in a later request for similar designation.

But the SBA included all areas of the state damaged by the tornadoes in the disaster declaration.

The 18 additional counties included are Cuyahoga, Delaware, Fairfield, Harrison, Jefferson, Knox, Licking, Medina, Mercer, Morrow, Muskingum, Perry, Pickaway, Seneca, Shelby, Trumbull, Union and Van Wert.

An aide to the governor, John McElroy, said the first "close" damage estimate should be ready today. The superintendent of the State Highway Patrol, Col. Anson B. Cook, said earlier that damage would be "at least $50 million."

The confirmed death toll in the state remained at 54 with more than 350 injured still in hospitals.

pee, and Savage, larger towns in their paths, were largely covered by flood waters.

Dozens of homes were evacuated along the St. Croix from Stillwater southward to where the river joins the Mississippi, near Hastings.

The Minnesota stood at nearly 28 feet at Mankato, still about 7 feet above flood stage, but slowly receding. Last week the river forced nearly 3,500 persons from their homes in Mankato and North Mankato.

The Northern State's Power Co. plant at Red Wing was ringed with thousands of sandbags piled up to a height of 22 feet in anticipation of the Mississippi's crest of 18 feet expected in the city next week.

The Crow River's high water at Delano burst a dam and sent some 300 persons to higher ground. The river's crest, expected Saturday, will top the 1952 record.

In the East Grand Forks area the Red River was expected to crest Friday at 43 feet, 15 feet above flood stage. At Moorhead, the river level was nearly 28 feet, or 11 feet above flood stage and dozens of homes lay under water. At Breckenridge the river was receding and lay two feet under flood stage.

Showers and thundershowers were forecast for most of Minnesota today, with temperatures ranging between 45 and 55 degrees.

Letter Tells of Situation Following Lincoln's Death

EDITOR'S NOTE: One hundred years ago today President Abraham Lincoln was shot by John Wilkes Booth at the Ford Theater. He died the next day. The following letter, written April 20, 1865, by Zephaniah Brown, a native of Hocking County, to his wife and family tells of the president's funeral and prevailing situations of the time. Mr. Brown, stationed at Mt. Pleasant Hospital in Washington D. C., served with Company K, 59th Regiment, Ohio Volunteer Infantry. He was the grandfather of Mrs. Bertha Fox Davis of Circleville.

Dear Wife and Children:

Being disappointed in not getting a letter for several days I shall drop you a few lines.

I am well as for common — hoping that these lines will find you all well.

I'm still here but don't now how long I will stay. The orders were to send all away from this hospital that were able to be transferred but since the death of the president everything has been so frustrated that there has been nothing done in the shape of transferring as yet and I don't know whether that order will be revoked or not. I think that I will know in a few days.

I was to the funeral of President Lincoln yesterday. It was the greatest sight that I ever saw. The procession was over a mile long and a solid mass of twenty-five abreast. The doors, windows, porches, banisters, stone houses, sentry boxes, the shade trees along the pavements and even the roof of a great many houses were all crowded with people who were not in the procession. There were one thousand and five hundred of our Order of the Sons of Temperance out. It looked nice.

We all had on our white regalia with a beautiful rose on it made of red, white and blue ribbon and draped with black crepe pinned on the left arm as a badge of mourning that we are to wear for thirty days, by the request of the Grand Worthy Patriot of empire division, No. 1 of our order.

It looks like putting on a great deal of style to go to a funeral, but yet it was a very solemn scene.

Everything being decorated with black crepe denoted serious scenes of mourning. They got the man that attempted the murder of Mr. Seward but they have not found John Wilkes Booth as yet. They are on his track and think that they will get him. He is a cousin of the rebel Captain Beale who was hanged some months ago and he took this plan to get revenge. There were three men arrested in Georgetown yesterday, dressed in women's clothes. I have not heard yet what their capture has amounted to. We are still getting good news from the Army. Johnston has surrendered to General Sherman and I think that they will all follow suit as fast as our forces overtake them. Mosley sent to Sherman to know on what terms he would accept the surrender of his men. I can't give you the answer but he can't expect anything more than 6 or 8 feet of good hemp rope, and it would be a pity to spend that much on him, when one load of powder and one ball would answer the same purpose. Well, Zuriath, I still have some hopes of getting home before long but I do not know what might turn up to keep us here. They got orders to give no more furloughs, but I can't find out why. I would like to hear from you but I may be sent to Camp Chase — or to New York or Philadelphia or maybe to some other hospital in the city.

From your affectionate husband and father.

Unachieved Ambitions Detailed

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Your dreams and ambitions need periodic overhauling just as your diet or your car.

Dreams, like everything else, show wear and ear. Some need to be repaired or have a fresh gloss put on them.

Overhauling your dreams is a good game to play on a rainy weekend in spring. You simply sit down with pen and paper, and scribble down all the dreams and hopes of your life.

Then you scratch out the ones that are out of date or have become impossible, revise a few, perhaps add several.

You will find that the hurrying years have made some of your earlier aspirations ludicrous you can eliminate them.

For example, in going over my own list recently, I discovered that back in 1925 my two biggest goals were to be able to chin myself 25 times and to be the champ mah-jongg player in my neighborhood.

In honeymoon days in 1937 my wife and I were paying only a buck a day for groceries—not counting beer—and I hoped to cut the figure to 75 cents.

Obviously, such goals today are either impossible or nonsensical. After weeding out these and others, I completed a new budget of dreams.

At the moment my unachieved ambitions are to—

Be mistaken in public for Gregory Peck.

Become the first guy over 50 in my block to grow a third set of teeth and a new head of hair. Learn how to work out my daughter's problems in the new mathematics.

Dying Oberlin Elm Is Felled by Workmen

BERLIN, Ohio (AP) — The historic Oberlin Elm, which was a full-grown tree when the first dwelling was built here 132 years ago, was felled by workmen Tuesday. The elm has been dying of dutch elm disease for several years, and college officials feared it might infect other growth if allowed to stand.

Does the name Meniere's disease apply to all kinds of dizziness?

Absolutely not. Meniere's disease is a relatively rare condition which has three major characteristics. Sudden attacks of violent and incapacitating dizziness, progressive loss of hearing, and consistent noise (tinnitus) are the threesome which suggest Meniere's disease.

For some unexplainable reason, many people seem to be terrified unnecessarily by the name "Meniere's." It does not mean a cancer. It does not mean an impending stroke.

There are dozens of causes of dizziness, many of which are too readily incorrectly classified as Meniere's disease.

Even the descriptive term "dizziness" is confusing. Too often patients use it to describe a headache, eyestrain, upset stomach or migraine.

Russia's Stake

By John Chamberlain

The Foreign Minister of Ruritania was in another of his skeptical moods. "You Americans," he said, "think that things always have to be settled. But why should anything ever be settled when it is to the interest of big countries to keep things in a state of flux?"

"There's this idea that there's got to be a parley on the South Vietnamese situation, for instance. Well, I won't say there never will be negotiations; the North Vietnamese may decide that the loss of their industrial investments in and around Hanoi is too big a price to pay for continued warfare. But this doesn't mean that Moscow wants the war in Vietnam to end."

"Look at it this way. If the United States were to get its way in a South Vietnamese peace, it would be a prime defeat for Marxist propaganda that wars of 'liberation' must be fought to a successful conclusion. But if the Red Chinese were to dominate the outcome of a parley, it would mean that Peking would be in fair shape to take over the dominant role in the world revolution. The most satisfactory solution of the Russians' problem in this matter of retaining its pretensions to leadership in the 'liberation' racket is, paradoxically, to keep things dawdling along in Southeast Asia.

"This presents some most ticklish problems to Moscow. But one way of forcing Lyndon Johnson to pause a bit in 'escalating' the war in Southeast Asia to the point of forcing a parley on Hanoi and Peking is to warn him that there is another front in the Cold War. This front is symbolized by West Berlin. You've just been treated to some more blockade troubles along the autobahn leading from West Germany across East German territory to Berlin. The Soviets put it out that the closing of the highway — the first shut down in sixteen years — was a reprisal against the scheduled meeting of the West German Bundestag in the old German capital. But, as your J. P. Morgan used to say, there are always two reasons for an action, the good — i. e., the plausible — reason and the real reason. I take it that the action at the autobahn, and the buzzing activities in the air corridors over the autobahn, had their relation to the situation in Southeast Asia.

"What you Americans must realize is that Moscow is, for the time being, committed to providing the validity of the old French saying that 'nothing endures like the provisional.' It has never wanted the Red Chinese to win a thumping victory in the eastern colonial and ex-colonial areas of the world. When Mao Tse-tung threatened to defeat India, the Soviets threw their weight to the side of the late Pandit Nehru, giving him some military aid and providing him with hopes for a steel mill. On his visit to Hanoi, Kossygin promised the North Vietnamese some help. But it was apparently purely defensive help in the form of anti-aircraft weapons and fighter planes. "Your Lyndon Johnson could, of course, cross the Russia's up by a real escalation of the war in Southeast Asia. For if the Red Chinese had to sue for peace to save their buffer areas in North Vietnam and Laos, Moscow would be made to seem cowardly in the eyes of nations like Nasser's Egypt and Castro's Cuba for its failure to come to the aid of its Communist brothers. On the other hand, if Lyndon Johnson were to pull out of South Vietnam, turning the area over to Red Chinese stooges, it would hurt Moscow by presenting Peking with an unchallenged leadership of the world revolution.

"You see," said the Foreign Minister of Ruritania, "why Moscow should want to divert Washington into turning its eyes toward West Berlin. But I'll stick my neck out and say Moscow doesn't want any real trouble, either. Don't expect anything too critical to happen anywhere unless Peking or Washington itself wants it to happen.

The Russians, don't forget, have an agricultural crisis coming up. They are negotiating in the Argentine for wheat. They don't want real war anywhere. Nor do they want peace anywhere on terms that will help either the United States or Red China. They just want to keep everybody bleeding until Russians from Kiev to Vladivostok are eating again."

BODY DONATION FOR SCIENTIFIC PURPOSES

Q. If a person donates his body to science can the directive be set aside by surviving members of the family?

A. State statutes dealing with the consignment of one's body for scientific study differ widely. About half the states have some sort of law either for whole-body donation or for whole-body, parts, and organ donation. Some allow donation either by will or by a witnessed written instrument. In certain states, any directive for the disposition of a human body or its parts, signed by the decedent, is not binding on the next of kin and can be set aside. Persons who wish to donate their body for scientific purposes should consult an attorney for legal advice.

Q. Is it true that as people grow older they need more vitamins?

A. No, provided, of course, they continue to eat "three squares" a day. A Senate Subcommittee recently stated that food faddists, like elderly persons of millions of dollars by suggesting that it is impossible to obtain an adequate diet from simple, inexpensive foods or that the afflictions of old age are dietary in origin. There is no scientific evidence that reasonably healthy older people require greater amounts of specific nutrients than do younger adults.

Letter Tells of Situation Following Lincoln's Death

EDITOR'S NOTE: One hundred years ago today President Abraham Lincoln was shot by John Wilkes Booth at the Ford Theater. He died the next day. The following letter, written April 20, 1865, by Zephaniah Brown, a native of Hocking County, to his wife and family tells of the president's funeral and prevailing situations of the time. Mr. Brown, stationed at Mt. Pleasant Hospital in Washington D. C., served with Company K, 39th Regiment, Ohio Volunteer Infantry. He was the grandfather of Mrs. Bertha Fox Davis of Circleville.

Dear Wife and Children:

Being disappointed in not getting a letter for several days I shall drop you a few lines.

I am well as for common — hoping that these lines will find you all well.

I'm still here but don't now how long I will stay. The orders were to send all away from this hospital that were able to be transferred but since the death of the president everything has been so frustrated that there has been nothing done in the shape of transferring as yet and I don't know whether that order will be revoked or not. I think that I will know in a few days.

I was to the funeral of President Lincoln yesterday. It was the greatest sight that I ever saw. The procession was over a mile long and a solid mass of twenty-five abreast. The pavements were crowded. The doors, windows, porches, banisters, store houses, sentry boxes, the shade trees along the pavements and even the roof of a great many houses were all crowded with people who were not in the procession. There were one thousand and five hundred of our Order of the Sons of Temperance out. It looked nice.

We all had on our white regalia with a beautiful rose on it made of red, white and blue ribbon and draped with black crepe and a bunch of black crepe pinned on the left arm as a badge of mourning that we are to wear for thirty days, by the request of the Grand Worthy Patriot of empire division, No. 1 of our order.

It looks like putting on a great deal of style to go to a funeral, but yet it was a very solemn scene.

Everything being decorated with black crepe denoted serious scenes of mourning. They got the man that attempted the murder of Mr. Seward but they have not found John Wilkes Booth as yet. They are on his track and think that they will get him. He is a cousin of the rebel Captain Beale who was hanged some months ago and he took this plan to get revenge. There were three men arrested in Georgetown yesterday, dressed in women's clothes. I have not heard yet what their capture has amounted to. We are still getting good news from the Army. Johnston has surrendered to General Sherman and I think that they will all follow suit as fast as our forces overtake them. Mosley sent to Sherman to know on what terms he would accept the surrender of his men. I can't give you the answer but he can't expect anything more than 6 or 8 feet of good hemp rope, and it would be a pity to spend that much on him, when one load of powder and one ball would answer the same purpose. Well, Zuriar, I still have some hopes of getting home before long but I do not know what might turn up to keep us here. They got orders to give no more furloughs, but I can't find out why. I would like to hear from you but I may be sent to Camp Chase — or to New York or Philadelphia or maybe to some other hospital in the city.

From your affectionate husband and father.

Unachieved Ambitions Detailed

NEW YORK (AP) — Your dreams and ambitions need periodic overhauling just as your diet or your car.

Dreams, like everything else, show wear and tear. Some need to be repaired or have a fresh gloss put on them.

Overhauling your dreams is a good game to play on a rainy weekend in spring. You simply sit down with pen and paper, and scribble down all the dreams and hopes of your life.

Then you scratch out the ones that are out of date or have become impossible, revise a few, perhaps add several.

You will find that the hurrying years have made some of your earlier aspirations ludicrous you can eliminate them.

For example, in going over my own list recently, I discovered that back in 1925 my two biggest goals were to be able to chin myself 25 times and to be the champ mah-jongg player in my neighborhood.

In honeymoon days in 1937 my wife and I were paying only a buck a day for groceries—not counting beer—and I hoped to cut the figure to 75 cents.

Obviously, such goals today are either impossible or non-sensical. After weeding out these and others, I completed a new budget of dreams.

At the moment my unachieved ambitions are to—

Be mistaken in public for Gregory Peck.

Become the first guy over 50 in my block to grow a third set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The diplomatic side of the Vietnam war is beginning to look like a table-tennis game.

President Johnson bats one to the North Vietnamese Communists; they bat it back.

Last week, to try to get peace talks started, he said they could begin without any strings attached.

But the Reds said what he proposed was all tied in strings. Now they have laid down a peace program with strings of their own.

For two months after Johnson ordered North Viet Nam bombed, to stop the Red guerrilla attacks on merican-backed South Viet Nam, his administration took this position:

"The key to the situation remains the cessation of infiltration from North Viet Nam and the clear indication by the Hanoi regime that it is prepared to cease aggression against its neighbor."

This policy, and the continued bombing, got Johnson criticism at home and quite a bit abroad. shift tactics a bit.

When 17 neutral nations said the peace talks, if held, should have no preliminary conditions attached, the pressure on Johnson was intensified.

The President in his nationwide broadcast April 7 said he would be willing to have "unconditional discussions" with the North Vietnamese about settling the war.

But he said the United States would settle only for an arrangement which will secure the independence of South Viet Nam.

He said withdrawal of American forces depended on working out such an arrangement.

His assistants said that while this country was willing to talk with North Viet Nam or Red China about peace it would not talk about it with the Red guerrilas fighting in South Viet Nam because they are only the agents of North Viet Nam.

North Viet Nam's response to this was that while Johnson talked of "unconditional discussions" he was actually surrounding them with conditions before any talks could begin.

And, North Viet Nam said the conditions were unacceptable.

The Russians called Johnson's talk a "noisy propaganda campaign." North Viet Nam's President Ho Chi Minh reportedly called Johnson's talk the "day-dreams of a madman."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said he was disappointed with all this.

Tuesday Premier Pham Van Dong of North Viet Nam laid down a four-point peace program which stated the Communist conditions for peace, one of which called for American withdrawal.

In addition, he said South Viet Nam's internal affairs would have to be settled according to the program of the Red guerrillas, although Johnson said the United States wouldn't even discuss peace with the guerrillas.

All this might seem to throw a gloomy cape over the prospects for peace but in this dark moment U.S. officials thought they saw a ray of light.

The week before last some of them were saying they doubted the American bombing was crippling the ability of the North Vietnamese Reds to infiltrate men and supplies for the guerrillas in South Viet Nam.

But now officials are saying the bombings are causing substantial trouble for the Reds and are interfering with the infiltration of men and supplies into South Viet Nam.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The diplomatic side of the Vietnamese war is beginning to look like a table-tennis game.

President Johnson bats one to the North Vietnamese Communists; they bat it back.

Last week, to try to get peace talks started, he said they could begin without any strings attached.

But the Reds said what he proposed was all tied in strings. Now they have laid down a peace program with strings of their own.

For two months after Johnson ordered North Viet Nam bombed, to stop the Red guerrilla attacks on American-backed South Viet Nam, his administration took this position:

"The key to the situation remains the cessation of infiltration from North Viet Nam and the clear indication by the Hanoi regime that it is prepared to cease aggression against its neighbor."

This policy, and the continued bombing, got Johnson criticism at home and quite a bit abroad, shift tactics a bit.

When 17 neutral nations said the peace talks, if held, should have no preliminary conditions attached, the pressure on Johnson was intensified.

The President in his nationwide broadcast April 7 said he would be willing to have "unconditional discussions" with the North Vietnamese about settling the war.

But he said the United States would settle only for an arrangement which will secure the independence of South Viet Nam.

He said withdrawal of American forces depended on working out such an arrangement.

His assistants said that while

this country was willing to talk with North Viet Nam or Red China about peace it would not talk about it with the Red guer-

Washington PTO Makes Carnival Plans

The Washington Twp. Parent-Teacher Organization has scheduled the annual carnival April 23.

The ways and means committee consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Ritchie (chairmen), Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. Carl DeBruin met recently to map plans.

A jitney supper will be served from 5 to 7:30 p. m. and a white elephant sale will be held starting at 8 p. m. Games, including a country store, will take place from 6 p. m. until the sale begins.

Cake baking and candy making contests are being held among the ladies of the PTO. This will be judged and the foods will be sold.

The food must be at the school in the morning so it can be judged at noon. The public is invited.

rillas fighting in South Viet Nam because they are only the agents of North Viet Nam.

North Viet Nam's response to this was that while Johnson talked of "unconditional discussions" he was actually surrounding them with conditions before any talks could begin.

And, North Viet Nam said the conditions were unacceptable.

The Russians called Johnson's talk a "noisy propaganda campaign." North Viet Nam's President Ho Chi Minh reportedly called Johnson's talk the "day-dreams of a madman."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said he was disappointed with all this.

Tuesday Premier Pham Van Dong of North Viet Nam laid down a four-point peace program which stated the Communist conditions for peace, one of which called for American withdrawal.

In addition, he said South Viet Nam's internal affairs would have to be settled according to the program of the Red guerrillas, although Johnson said the United States wouldn't even discuss peace with the guerrillas.

Rev. Huber Addresses Monday Club Members

The Rev. William Huber was guest speaker when Monday Club met this week in the high school cafeteria. His topic was "Seeing Children's Problems."

He said that confronting us all today are the problems of children and parents. They start when the child does not conform to community expectations. He referred to the age group 2 through adolescence.

In discussing the destructive child Rev. Huber stated that children are not destructive by nature. They are generally curious and perhaps have not been taught how to handle things properly. He said that disobedience in a child can be caused by the emphasis on instant obedience to orders or by parents being too lenient.

In the matter of stealing the speaker said that this can be caused by the following reasons, pure game to the child, means to make up for love, to win friendship or a revenge against parents.

Mr. Huber noted that fears generally affect those 2-6 years old. The unknown is dreaded and sometimes this can be lifted by showing the unknown to him. Regarding bed wetting he said it is sometimes the result of a socio-economic background, can be hereditary, or due to severe toilet training. Disciplinary problems can be caused by parents demanding things not consistent with standards of the community.

The Rev. Huber said, "Adolescent problems are caused by social and culture stresses, not biological. The adolescent is fighting for independence. This is the age when the youth is rebelling and trying to detach himself economically and socially from parents. This is the time when parents should provide guidance and some privacy. This is the time of query and searching and the child should be allowed this time of inquiry."

According to the speaker general problems of the adolescent are conflict with parents who resent this independence and parents who refuse to accept facts. Some parents suggest misbehavior by prohibiting and suggesting things the child had never heard of till then and perfectionist parents are hard on the teenager.

In the question and answer period which followed Rev. Huber brought out the following points: motivate by punishment or reward and it depends on the age of the child which you use; if a father is harmless ignore it; the pressures to conform aren't any greater than they used to be.

The committee for the evening was Mrs. Mason, Mrs. Betts, Mrs. Lucille Thomas and Mrs. Charles Richardson, assisted by Mrs. Frank Hawkes. Miss Kirkwood offered the closing prayer.

Refreshments were served to 21 members. Guests were Mrs. Robinson, Miss Kirkwood, Mrs. Bond, Mrs. Carl Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Hawkes.

The committee for the evening was Mrs. Mason, Mrs. Betts, Mrs. Lucille Thomas and Mrs. Charles Richardson, assisted by Mrs. Frank Hawkes. Miss Kirkwood offered the closing prayer.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

He's Too Friendly!

DEAR ABBY: For several years Jayson and Rita and my husband and I have been very good friends. We see each other in the evenings about two nights a week. Jayson is a salesman, so when he is in my neighborhood he frequently drops in for a cup of coffee. It's all perfectly innocent, I assure you, but lately he has been coming over much more often. My children remarked that their playmates have mentioned it. I suspect the neighbors are talking because they see his car in front of our house so many afternoons.

Now that I think about it, I'm not quite sure how I would like it if MY husband called on a married woman in the afternoon. How can I tell Jayson it would be better if he didn't drop in any more? I hate to hurt his feelings.

ONLY FRIENDS
DEAR ONLY: The best approach is the direct one. Tell Jayson that his visits have become neighborhood gossip, and it would be better for all concerned if he discontinued his afternoon drop-in visits.

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl who turned 15 last week, but I am very mature for my age. Physically, I mean. I like a boy who is a senior at school and he is real neat. He has started to walk me home from school every night and we always take the long way by walking through the park. My mother is afraid I will get into trouble if I keep letting this boy walk me home every night. Do you think there is any danger?

LIKES HIM
DEAR LIKES: Not if you keep walking.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a father who won't buy his child a piano even though he could get one wholesale? Our

Rev. Huber Addresses Monday Club Members

The Rev. William Huber was guest speaker when Monday Club met this week in the high school cafeteria. His topic was "Seeing Children's Problems."

He said that confronting us all today are the problems of children and parents. They start when the child does not conform to community expectations. He referred to the age group 2 through adolescence.

In discussing the destructive child Rev. Huber stated that children are not destructive by nature. They are generally curious and perhaps have not been taught how to handle things properly. He said that disobedience in a child can be caused by the emphasis on instant obedience to orders or by parents being too lenient.

In the matter of stealing the speaker said that this can be caused by the following reasons, pure game to the child, means to make up for love, to win friendship or a revenge against parents.

Mr. Huber noted that fears generally affect those 2-6 years old. The unknown is dreaded and sometimes this can be lifted by showing the unknown to him. Regarding bed wetting he said it is sometimes the result of a socio-economical background, can be hereditary, or due to severe toilet training. Disciplinary problems can be caused by parents demanding things not consistent with standards of the community.

The Rev. Huber said, "A do-lescent problems are caused by social and culture stresses, not biological. The adolescent is fighting for independence. This is the age when the youth is rebelling and trying to detach himself economically and socially from parents. This is the time when parents should provide guidance and some privacy. This is the time of query and searching and the child should be allowed this time of inquiry."

According to the speaker general problems of the adolescent are conflict with parents who resent this independence and parents who refuse to accept facts. Some parents suggest misbehavior by prohibiting and suggesting things the child has never heard of till then and perfectionist parents are hard on the teenager.

In the question and answer period which followed Rev. Huber brought out the following points: motivate by punishment or reward and it depends on the age of the child which you use; if a fact is harmless ignore it; the pressures to conform aren't any greater than they used to be.

The group spent the evening recalling past parties, programs and members, and looking at snapshots and a motion picture of the "Hobo Party".

Mrs. Carl Wilson presented to the class the Bible which had been given to the late Rev. Carl Wilson by Mrs. Fred Zwickler. The Bible was a gift to Mrs. Zwickler by the Loyal Daughters Class on the celebration of her thirty years as teacher of the class.

Refreshments were served to 21 members. Guests were Mrs. Robinson, Miss Kirkwood, Mrs. David Bond, Mrs. Carl Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Hawkes.

The committee for the evening was Mrs. Mason, Mrs. Betts, Mrs. Lucille Thomas and Mrs. Charles Richardson, assisted by Mrs. Frank Hawkes.

Miss Kirkwood offered the closing prayer.

Dear Abby: He's Too Friendly!

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: For several years Jayson and Rita and my husband and I have been very good friends. We see each other in the evenings about two nights a week. Jayson is a salesman, so when he is in my neighborhood he frequently drops in for a cup of coffee. It's all perfectly innocent, I assure you, but lately he has been coming over much more often. My children remarked that their playmates have mentioned it. I suspect the neighbors are talking because they see his car in front of our house so many afternoons.

Now that I think about it, I'm not quite sure how I would like it if MY husband called on a married woman in the afternoon. How can I tell Jayson it would be better if he didn't drop in any more? I hate to hurt his feelings.

ONLY FRIENDS
DEAR ONLY: The best approach is the direct one. Tell Jayson that his visits have become neighborhood gossip, and it would be better for all concerned if he discontinued his afternoon drop-in visits.

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl who turned 15 last week, but I am very mature for my age. Physically, I mean. I like a boy who is a senior at school and he is real neat. He has started to walk me home from school every night and we always take the long way by walking through the park. My mother is afraid I will get into trouble if I keep letting this boy walk me home every night. Do you think there is any danger?

LIKES HIM
DEAR LIKES: Not if you keep walking.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a father who won't buy his child a piano even though he could get one wholesale? Our

Wealthy Young Levite Joins Band Heeding Stirring Call from Peter

EDITOR'S NOTE — For 49 days after the Crucifixion of Christ, His decimated following remained inactive, in a kind of numbed lethargy. Then, on the 50th day, the Jewish feast of Pentecost, commemorating God's gift of His law to mankind, something happened. This, the third part of a five-part series about post-Resurrection events, concerns that astounding day.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The hosts of humanity paused that day, and pondered. It was an unlikely thing. Twelve shabby renegades shouted their exhortations in the streets, and the population heard.

Men tried to turn away but their feet would not carry them. Joseph Bar-Nabas, a wealthy, studious young Levite, could neither comprehend nor deny the surging response within him.

It was Pentecost, the Jewish festival of the bringing of of the first fruits, the eighth of Sivan, in the 15th year of the reign of Tiberius. Jerusalem swarmed with pilgrims of every nation and tongue.

And a crew of lawless rogues whose leader had been crucified seven weeks before cried their outrageous claims in the public thoroughfares, and hearts - by the hundreds - paused and pounded. Bar-Nabas beheld it, as in a daze.

At the "broad place" near the Damascus Gate, a throng massed around the lean-boned Galilean, John, called Son of Thunder. He stabbed a finger at sky and earth. "The Father has sent His Son as the Savior of the world!"

"He was in the world, the world knew Him not!" The voice spilled over them, a relentless tide. "By this we know love, that He laid down His life for us. Love casts out fear. He has given us of His own Spirit!"

The fomenters held forth on every hand - in the crowded market plaza, under the porch of Bethesda pool, on the pavement before the synagogue of the Alexandrians, and in the teeming outer court of the Temple.

Bar-Nabas recognized most of them, having seen them skulking about the house of his sister, Mary, who in her sentimental widowhood had embraced the cult. It had worried him. But now, with this uproar, worse might befall.

In the Temple quadrangle, the rough tones of the fishmonger, Peter, beat like a drum roll. "God hath made Him both Lord and Christ, this Jesus whom you crucified."

The reckless improbability of it could not have been greater. A condemned cause! A "crimson" progeny! The very word, "crucified," was anathema in the mouths of Israel. Yet this rabid nest had set the city agog.

The man, Peter, dropped his arms and stood there, silent a moment, an unruffled mastery on him, and then resumed speaking, slowly, deliberately.

"Give ear to my words. For these men are not drunk, as you suppose, since it is only the third hour of the day." Plainly, simply, that was so; not even the morning meal came before the third hour, much less wine. Something else, like bridled rode the morning air.

Bar-Nabas, ever since rising at dawn from a fitful sleep, had felt the strange compulsion of it, like a humming in his ears. As he ventured into the streets, in intensified, even as he struggled against it.

Initially, he had no inkling of its cause, and then he had come first upon that firebrand John, atop some box or stone in the gateway square, his livid face flung back, extolling the slain Jesus.

"In Him was life, and the life was the light of men! The light shines in the darkness." That weird vitality charged the air, gripped the listeners. "This is the victory that overcomes the world."

Bar-Nabas knew then the sense of his forebodings, that his sister and her son, John Mark, might be brought into jeopardy. For on this most volatile day of the year, the outcasts she harbored had loosed their wild foray.

Surely the authorities would speedily strike it down.

Yet in Bar-Nabas, and around him, the questions buzzed.

"Are not all these who are speaking Galileans? And how is it that we hear, each of us in his own native tongue?"

Whether only impression or objective reality, it had the same pervasive effect. It gripped each person in his own condition, an all-encompassing, universal speech like the Greek Koine, yet much more than that.

Indeed, these rough Galileans spoke their native language, yet accompanied by an infinite clarity, a strength and transport which overcame divisions, as if one tongue had diffused into many, or many had combined into one.

"What does this mean?" the people exclaimed.

Bar-Nabas found himself remembering an ancient prophecy of Joel. "...I will pour out My spirit on all flesh... your old men shall dream dreams, and your young men shall see visions."

With a start, he realized that the man, Peter, was reciting that very augury, in his eerily expansive idiom. The thought, rather than the sound, had reached Bar-Nabas, or both. He broke into a sweat, and the stabbing inflections went on, the strange magnetism of those voices.

"The day of the Lord!...The great and manifest day!"

A profound tension had fallen over the crowd, muffled, held in leash, like some stifled outcry. Finally it came, "What shall we do?" The sun blazed in Bar-Nabas' eyes, and around him the stricken plea resounded, "What shall we do?"

"Repent and be baptized," Peter cried, "every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of sins."

A tenderness enfolded Bar-Nabas; he tasted the breath of spring, and he dropped to his knees, conscious that many others had done likewise.

Three thousand were baptized that day. The fold of Christ, shrunk after the Crucifixion to a tiny, fearful band of 120, suddenly had swelled into a fervent multitude. Thus the work commenced, not gradually, but with an abrupt, radical stroke.

Never had the impact of Jesus been so great. Crushed on the cross, His way surged stronger than ever. No names

Uranium Urged As Successor To Coin Silver

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you take the silver out of dimes, quarters, halves and cartwheels, what do you use instead?

It's a question that must soon be answered, because silver supplies are reaching a crisis stage. And it's a question that gets different answers from mining men, vending-machine interests and economists. Such silver substitutes as nickel, stainless steel, and the metal columbium have been suggested.

But the prize for the most original suggestion of all has to go to Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Calif.

Hosmer proposes a dab of uranium in each coin — depleted uranium, of course, so the money wouldn't burn a hole in anyone's pocket.

Hosmer reasoned this way in an interview: One of the main dangers in lowering the silver content of the coins, or eliminating it entirely, is that hoarders would instantly put every silver dime, quarter and half dollar in the country in an old sock under the mattress on the theory that the old coins are worth more.

This would be following that old economic saw called Gresham's Law — bad money drives out good money. It could cause monetary chaos.

But, Hosmer said, the Treasury could artificially peg the price of depleted uranium at exactly the price of silver, so that each of the new coins would be worth exactly as much as the old ones, and no one would be tempted to hoard silver coins or melt them down.

Radioactive? Not so, said Hosmer, who is a member of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee. The depleted uranium, or U238, would have no more radioactivity than the family television set, he said.

And the beautiful part, according to Hosmer, is that the United States has a big supply of depleted uranium, a byproduct of the manufacture of nuclear weapons. And since other countries don't make the stuff, they can't throw the U.S. monetary standard out of kilter by selling a lot of it.

Before retiring, Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon had this to say at a Feb. 15 House Appropriations hearing: "It is very clear we cannot continue with our present silver coinage. We only have about three years of silver left."

Easter Business 'Good'

NEW YORK (AP) — Bad weather has put a crimp in Easter buying in many areas optimistic that their cash registers will ring up record sales.

The late Easter — it comes three weeks later than in 1964 — was a favorable factor.

"It's always better for business when Easter is late," said a Denver merchant. "A woman is less apt to be in the mood to buy a flowery spring hat when it's snowing."

"We would have fallen on our faces if Easter had been early this year," said an executive of Filene's, which has 10 department stores in the Boston area. "People are like crocuses. They don't come out until the sun gets warmer."

Only a few retailers contacted in a nationwide Associated Press survey said that the heavier income tax payments which many people faced due to underwithholding had affected sales.

In New York, David Yunich, president of Macy's, big department store chain, said, "We

Present of Liquor Store Disallowed

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Sen. Jasper Brancato won't be able to give his daughter and future son-in-law a liquor department as a wedding present. The school board won't allow it.

Joseph Conova, the bridegroom, owns a food store. Brancato wants to put a liquor section in it but needed Board of Education permission because the store is within 300 feet of the Greenwood Elementary School.

The Greenwood Parent-Teacher Association objected. So did 91 parents who signed a petition.

The board decided not to waive the requirement even for such sentimental reasons as a wedding present.

increase for March and April over the like period of 1964.

Bernard Zients, executive head of Gimbel's, another major New York department store chain, said he expects a "wonderful" Easter business and indicated the present trend shows "all the earmarks" of a gain over last year.

Edward Marcus, vice president of Nieman-Marcus department store in Dallas, Tex. said:

"We haven't seen that the income tax underwithholding has made any difference yet, but it might as the days get close to Easter. Styles and colors are about the same with the exception that they're a bit younger this year."

Many Heartbreaks Suffered by Victims of Tornado Zone

TORNADO VICTIMS search through wreckage of house trailer in Bean Lake, Mo. Twister hit here, then smashed a school.

TOLEDO, Ohio, (AP) — A friend took Mrs. William Jones to buy new shoes for a funeral today.

The Toledo preacher's wife, like hundreds of other Ohioans, lost all her possessions in Sunday's terrible twister here.

But she lived. Her father, grandmother and 11 others in this area were killed.

Tuesday, a friend helped Mrs. Jones, 33, buy the shoes. Her husband was searching the debris of their home for anything of value.

Their efforts, and heartbreak, were typical across the state:

— In Pittsfield, 100 miles away, the phone still rings in Robert J. Diedrick's shell of a house — one of the few places with walls in the town of 50 residents where nine died. Diedrick looks at his decimated herd of cattle—20 of 40 head killed.

— At Radnor, a central Ohio town of 300 people, neighbors rounded up the 300 unattended hogs of Paul Zeigler and took them to market. Zeigler, hurled 500 feet by a tornado, was treated and released at a hospital. His wife, Gertrude, had hold of his hand as they sought shelter in the basement. She was killed.

— In Amherst, near Pittsfield, Richard Kay, 43, came out of sedation and said: "We were lucky. We were the main survivors of the whole community." Kay's mother was killed, but he, his wife and four children lived.

— At Lima, Dennis Miller, 38, hospitalized with a back injury, recalled how his house trailer was carried three miles by the storm. Miller and his family took refuge on the floor of a nearby brick building. It fell on them, but he says, "We were very fortunate. We had somebody with us, I'll tell you."

What will the survivors do now, without homes and clothing?

"I suppose I'm being dramatic, but knowing the people, Pittsfield will be back again," said Kay. An electrical foreman at Oberlin College, he and his family have been provided with temporary living quarters by the college. He figured the loss of his home at about $20,000, partly covered by insurance.

Mrs. Jones, whose husband is pastor of the Trinity Episcopal church, said, "Someone has offered us a home for a few months." Today she went to Harrisonburg, Va. for the funeral of her father, Percy H. Warren, 59, and her grandmother, Mrs. James Moran.

Lorain County agricultural agent Harold Spence said he thinks Diedrick, who has seven children, will stay in the dairy business. He estimated Diedrick's loss at $64,000.

The 1964 Youth Photography Award, sponsored by the Family Ministry of West Germany, produced 7,000 entries. Eighty-five per cent of the participants were boys but more than 25 per cent of the 43 top prizes were won by girls.

Bus Bill Foes Expected at New Hearing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Statehouse order-keepers and the Ohio Highway Patrol were armed with admission tickets and loudspeakers today as they prepared for another invasion of bus bill opponents.

They hoped to prevent a repeat of the chaotic conditions of two weeks ago when upwards of 1,000 persons jammed halls and stairways in a bid to hear opposition testimony to the controversial legislation.

Before the House Education Committee are proposals calling on school boards to provide bus transportation for private and parochial school students.

House Sergeant-at-Arms Harry Corkwell said tickets would be issued on a first-come, first-serve basis until the hearing room is filled. The rest of the crowd will remain outside on the west steps where loudspeakers will be available to witnesses after they leave the hearing room, Corkwell said.

He said there was no practical way to pipe committee proceedings to the outside but under his plan, witnesses would be able to repeat their testimony for those unable to get into the hearing room.

Other highlights of the day were to include a vote in the House on a measure making juveniles subject to the death penalty on recommendation of Juvenile Court Judges. Juveniles charged with capital crimes would be tried in Common Pleas courts as adults if certified by a judge to be emotionally and physically mature.

Family matters occupied the legislators Tuesday as the House voted to lift a 70-year ban on sale of birth control devices and the Senate approved a measure aimed at curbing mental retardation among children.

A measure that would have banned common law marriages fell one vote short of passage in the House but members agreed to reconsider and leave the bill pending for a later vote.

Sponsors of the birth control bill said it would legalize the work of planned parenthood groups and the sale of contraceptives banned under Ohio's antiquated but ignored Comstock Laws enacted in 1870.

Sen. Ed Garrigan, R-Summit, with two cosponsors offered the bill requiring mental retardation tests for new-born infants.

The House defeated, 31-89, a measure that would have boosted the maximum fine for reckless driving from $50 to $500 and provided a 90-day jail sentence.

The Senate also passed and sent to the House measures easing restrictions on commercial Lake Erie perch fishermen and clarifying laws on bills of particulars and certain types of testimony.

Among other House-passed bills are measures prohibiting the sale, manufacture or installation of devices to bypass automatic telephone equipment. Sponsors said Ohio law already bans use of such equipment. Bookies and gamblers are the primary targets of the measures, they said.

New bills introduced would license and qualify nursing home administrators, create a board of review to act on complaints against the Insurance Department, permit state contractors to offer package bids up to four projects, and increase certain types of payments from the workmen's relief fund.

Sunday Sales Case Dismissed by Judge

CLEVELAND (AP)—A Sunday sales case that was filed a year and a half ago against the president of the Giant Tiger discount store was dismissed Tuesday by Municipal Court Judge Theodore M. Williams.

Judge Williams dismissed the case on a motion by defense attorneys who said the prosecution failed to prove their client, Louis Weisberg, was president of the chain when the sale was made in August, 1963.

Wealth Sweeps Away Most Rules Governing 'Society' in Miami

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — "God knows who those people are — but we don't," the heir of one of Miami's founders sniffed automatically at the current crop of winter colonists who now stay to play until May in this tropical playground.

"Society? Well, we've got a lot of rich people trying to outspend each other, if that's what you mean."

Yet if society is prominent American families, this town has it. Firestone, Du Pont, Deering, McCormick, Bell, Palmer, Vanderbilt, Astor — their children are here.

If society consists of founding families, this town has that, too. Miami Beach is celebrating the half-century mark since its first millionaire arrived. In 1915 sportsman Carl Fisher, who built the Indianapolis Speedway, pumped this island paradise out of the bay and beat the drum to draw the well-heeled from the cold North. Miami proper is only 20 years older.

If society has become celebrity worship with a stack of press notices good or bad making up for whatever the person lacks in background, as social historian Cleveland Amory says it has, then Miami has become this kind of society, too.

The jet set, horsey set, yacht crowd, actors, artists, writers, big industrialists, widows, ex-wives — people with nothing in common but money — mingle briefly at the big social functions then fall again into their proper niches.

They keep Florida green. So rich indeed is the gold lode here that every kind of national fundraising organization taps it with charity benefit balls, much to the annoyance of local charities. Hence at least one of these tax deductible full-dress bashers at from $25 to $100 a head is on the Miami socialite's calendar each week, along with four or five private parties.

Nancy Greene, wife of Robert Z. Greene, the vending machine millionaire, a petite Dresden doll with a mass of silky black hair piled high on her head, undoubtedly is the champion sponsor of charity balls.

The season is so short, Mrs. Green says, that there aren't enough open dates on the private club calendars to accommodate all the members who want to throw parties and so two or three hosts share the same one. Because even the rich have fewer servants and smaller quarters today, the five clubs — Bath, Surf, La Gorce, Indian Creek and Westview — are doing a booming "instant party" business.

The party — preferably a costume party — with a theme is the thing today. At the Surf Club's Saturday night galas, the pace changes from an extravaganza night under the big top with elephants and cotton candy to romantic Arabian nights with magic lanterns, camels, sheiks and harems. A set designer works full time, year around in the club basement keeping ahead with props for the spectacular parties dreamed up by the club's silver-haired director, Alfred Barton, 63.

One thing Miami society is not is a happy man-hunting ground. The unattached man here is spoiled by an overabundance of rich and lonely widows and rich and lonely ex-wives constantly vying for his escort services during the busy party season.

The only real swingers in town after 11:30 most nights are the tourists, not the fun-seekers on the party circuit. While the affluent winter colonists do not have to punch time clocks, they do get up early for a busy daytime schedule of golf and tennis, the races, poolside buffet lunches, and the beauty parlors.

Apart from those who frequent the charity balls is a patch of wealth largely centered in Coconut Grove area who live unostentatiously but luxuriously, and who play hard, but without much publicity.

"Who needs it?" asks Kitty Cudahy, a deep-dimpled, sun-bronzed tennis enthusiast who is nearly always barefoot. Not she of the meat packing family, nor the Deering-Daniels of farm implement millions, nor Willis du Pont of the chemical empire, nor the Richard Bertrams.

Wealthy to start with, Bertram amassed another fortune at the end of the war turning out yachts with assembly-line speed, eventually becoming among the nation's largest pleasure and racing boat brokers.

In a starkly modern high-rise apartment building three girlhood friends, a Jewess, a Catholic and a Baptist, met recently and reminisced about the old Miami their families founded.

One was Eleanor Riley Piro whose father, John B. Riley, was Miami's first mayor.

Another was Elizabeth Loomis, daughter of J.E. Loomis, the second mayor. The third was Claire Weintraub, daughter of Isidor Cohen, who owned a dry-goods store and became the president of Miami's first organization of merchants.

When they were babies along with the city at the turn of the century, the winter season began with the grand opening of the Royal Palm Hotel on Jan. 1 and stopped abruptly after the Washington's birthday ball.

"We were a small Southern community," recalls Eleanor Riley Piro whose marriage to Joseph Piro was the social event of the first decade. "Civic leadership and background meant so much."

Mozambique Multiracial Society Working OK

By LYNN HEINZERLING
LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (AP) — Two school-boys skip through a dusty schoolyard, one black hand clasped in a white one.

An African farmer jabsbers in Portuguese across an irrigation ditch to his white Portuguese neighbor amid the green rice stalks.

On the busy streets of Lourenco Marques, shoppers of almost every shade known to man elbow each other amicably.

Here, in lush, tropical Mozambique, and across the continent in Angola, another Portuguese province, may rest the last chance for a genuine, multiracial society in Africa.

The Portuguese, who came to both shores of Africa more than 400 years ago, say they are determined to foster and maintain it.

The 35 member states of the Organization of African Unity want every foot of African soil under African or Arab rule.

With the aid of Algerian and Communist Chinese arms, the OAU has been supporting rebellions inside the northern fronttiers of both Angola and Mozambique.

The Portuguese answer was to send more than 100,000 troops to the two territories, known as "provinces" in Lisbon and "colonies" to the nationalist leaders of black Africa.

What chance has Portugal, a nation of 10 million, of repeating in Africa what is known to Portuguese as "the glory of Brazil?"

Portuguese officials say they can handle any army the OAU could send against them in the immediate future. But poverty, ignorance and tribalism are major problems in Angola and Mozambique, and in independent nations to the north.

Education was not a bright spot in Angola and Mozambique during the first centuries of Portuguese rule. Now schools are going up. Both Angola and Mozambique have universities.

The spending of about $120 million annually to defend the northern border areas has taken funds needed elsewhere. But schools, hospitals, factories and farm settlement projects testify to the new energies being released.

Thousands of Africans are moving away from a subsistence level into the cash economy as small farmers. They get financial and technical assistance, as well as marketing facilities for their rice, coffee, cotton, cashew nuts.

One of Africa's most unusual settlements comprises 13 villages along the Limpopo River around Guila.

In what 10 years ago was barren bush country, a thousand Portuguese peasant families and just under 500 African families now live side by side. They tend rice and cotton in adjacent fields, send their children to the same schools, churches, dances and football games.

The project started with eight Portuguese families in 1954 after the Portuguese administration had dammed the Limpopo and dug a huge irrigation ditch.

Now it includes the 13 villages — each with its church, school, stores, cafes and cemetery — stretching some 50 miles along the south bank of the river.

The requirements are simple. The head of the family must be not older than 45 and in good health. There are 500 families on the waiting list in Portugal and 900 African families trying to find a place in the scheme.

Each settler when he arrives is given 10-25 acres, depending on the size of his family, 24 acres of free grazing land, a pair of oxen, five heifers, a pig and a sow, one cow, five hens and a rooster. They also get a furnished house with three bedrooms, living room, kitchen and bath.

The settler contracts to pay the government about $3,000 by turning over one-sixth of his crop each year until it is liquidated. He then receives title.

African women like the houses but they don't know what to do with the tables and chairs. Often they eat on the floor as they always have done. One of the Portuguese administrators, Nuno Menano, says:

"The next generation will be different. The kids are all going to school together, studying religion together and going to dances together."

In addition to their crops of cotton, corn and vegetables, the settlers last year produced 25,000 tons of rice worth nearly $2 million.

There is a system of cooperatives and dairies provide fresh milk, butter and cheese. A sausage factory is being built.

There is no segregation on racial lines in Angola or Mozambique. Whites and blacks eat in the same restaurants if they can afford it. The Portu-

Grant Goes To Wright

Robert E. Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wright, Route 3, has been awarded a National Science Foundation grant for an academic year institute to attend the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.

Wright, who will be working on his MS in biology education is a 1955 graduate of Ashville High School and received his BS in agriculture at Ohio State University in 1959.

Presently he is completing his fourth year of teaching biology and general science at Carroll High School in Fairfield County.

Wright resides in Pickerington, O., with his wife, Kileen. Mrs. Wright is the former county extension agent, home economics, for Pickaway County. They have two children.

Game Protector Makes 3 Arrests

The Circleville Municipal Court docket listed three men cited by Pickaway County Game protector Russell Tippett.

William James Francis, Orient, was charged with possession of an illegal minnow trap. He waived a court hearing and paid a fine of $10 and costs.

Charged with hunting ground-nogs on Sunday were Frank Edwards and Bandy Taylor, both of Columbus. They forfeited bonds of $34 when they failed to appear for court hearings.

Masons Will Attend Easter Sunrise Service

Scio Commandery, Knights Templar, will attend sunrise services 6 a. m. Sunday at the Williamsport Methodist Church.

Knights will meet at the Masonic Temple at 5 a. m. They are scheduled to leave at 5:30 and will be accompanied by members of the local DeMolay Chapter.

Following the church service, knights and DeMolay members will hold their annual Easter breakfast at the temple.

NEW YORK (AP) — There were long sequences in Tuesday night's episode of "Combat" on ABC when an art-loving demolition expert, mortally wounded, was deciding whether to blow up a cave full of art treasures and a German observation post or to jeopardize the lives of 5,000 American soldiers advancing on the fort.

His decision was inevitable, of course, although a viewer could have wished the script writer might have resisted the inevitable B-movie cliché.

As the dying man set the explosive charge and was about to push the button, he gazed mournfully at a huge stone statue and murmured: "Forgive me." And then, from the eye of the marble figure streamed a

The two heroes who alternate in the leading roles — Rick Jason and Vic Morrow — usually look on the brink of exhaustion unshaven and totally war weary. Somehow each week they manage to escape unscathed, ready to attack the next machine gun post or capture another platoon of enemies.

Back in the real world, the 20th anniversary of the war on which "Combat" is based approaches. CBS has an ambitious anniversary scheduled for May 8, with its correspondents joining men from the British Broadcasting Corp. to revisit some of the memorable World War II scenes and with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and his old comrade, Field Marshal Lord Montgomery, reminiscing about the long road from Dunkirk to Berlin.

Recommended tonight: The Danny Kaye Show, CBS, 10-11 EST — with Gwen Verdon in her last Television appearance for the next season or so.

EDITOR'S NOTE — The strange case of a "Pooch's Paradise" in Ohio, Easter chick rumblings in Pittsburgh, a matter of civic pride in Tennessee, and new word on motion sickness from Baltimore comprise this week's panorama glimpse of the U.S. scene.

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The "Pooch's Paradise" is unmasked — but not necessarily over.

Like the commuting sea captain who maintained two homes old Dalmatian had the best of two lives with two families. A "dognaping" complaint uncovered the dual role.

Emory Mays Jr., 11, complained to police that a man had leaped from a car and seized his pet, Spot. But next day, Spot returned.

Police, tracing the car's license number came to Benjamin Pisarski, who lives about 10 blocks from the Mays family. He told Det. Sgt. Gene Hoffman that a friend had recognized the dog as Pisarski's pet, Ringo, and had brought it back.

Further investigation showed that both families had bought 1965 license tags for the Dalmatian. Apparently the pooch had lived a double life since puphood.

Hoffman ruled that "as long as Spot wants to live in East Bancroft street with the Mays, the people on Austin Street, the Pisarskis, shouldn't bother him," and vice versa.

Mrs. Pisarski said she wouldn't contest the ownership. Her son, Benny, 8, now has his own Dalmatian, and agreed to give up Spot — or Ringo — after learning Emory has a rheumatic heart condition.

TULLAHOMA, Tenn. (AP) — The directors of the Tullahoma Chamber of Commerce have voted to protest to Southern Bell Telephone Co. because the city's person-to-person long distance calls go through Shelbyville.

The directors are unhappy over what happens when a caller in Tullahoma can't get his party in a distant city and leaves word for a return call. The operator says "Call operator so-and-so in Shelbyville and ask for Tullahoma."

Tullahoma industrialist Charles Folk says that makes Tullahoma seem like "a very small town way out in the sticks" to someone a long way off. Tullahoma is the site of the Arnold engineering development center, giant wind tunnel center which is part of the nation's space program.

It all started when Southern Bell moved the operators and switchboards to Shelbyville, where their functions were centralized with the advent of "direct distance dialing" in the lower middle Tennessee area in February.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dye chicks and ducklings will remain fair game for kiddies in Pittsburgh this Easter season.

"We have to be realistic; we can't do anything this year," said City Councilman Philip Baskin.

He was referring to a council decision to do nothing — because of lack of time — about a proposal to ban the sale of dyed chicks and ducklings in the city.

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — If trains give you motion sickness, stay off of them during July and schedule your trips in May or September.

A study of 371,261 passengers by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad showed a peak incidence of train sickness in July, with 2.2 persons getting motion sickness per 1,000, and a low of .5 person during May and September.

Other findings of the study: 1. Children had a higher rate of incidence than adults; women had a higher incidence than men.

2. Standard motion sickness pills provided relief within one hour for 92 per cent of the 45 passengers stricken.

3. Rough terrain appeared to have some influence, but only during the waking hours and at mealtimes.

New Measure May Protect State Solons

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Legislative candidates could ignore written solicitations or demands for statements on proposed legislation under a measure that may clear the Senate Civil-Service and Elections Committee today.

Sen. Robin Turner, R-Seneca, committee chairman, indicated the third airing may be the final one before the committee decides the fate of the bill authorized by Sen. Robert R. Shaw, R-Franklin.

Turner said the measure has been amended by Sen. Fred L. Hoffman, R-Hamilton, but that the amendment was offered not to change the bill but to clarify it "and spell out some of the details."

Shaw's bill has drawn considerable interest from the League of Women Voters and other groups but Turner said their appearances indicated concern rather than opposition.

Hoffman's amendment was designed to overcome objections, he said.

Shaw said that while his measure prohibits written solicitations "it does not prohibit a person from making an oral inquiry of a candidate's views on proposed legislation or other matters to come before the legislature."

2. Standard motion sickness pills provided relief within one hour for 92 per cent of the 45 passengers stricken.
3. Rough terrain appeared to have some influence, but only during the waking hours and at mealtimes.

New Measure May Protect State Solons

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Legislative candidates could ignore written solicitations or demands for statements on proposed legislation under a measure that may clear the Senate Civil Service and Elections Committee today.

Sen. Robin Turner, R-Seneca, committee chairman, indicated the third airing may be the final one before the committee decides the fate of the bill authored by Sen. Robert R. Shaw, R-Franklin.

Turner said the measure has been amended by Sen. Fred L. Hoffman, R-Hamilton, but that the amendment was offered not to change the bill but to clarify it "and spell out some of the details."

Shaw's bill has drawn considerable interest from the League of Women Voters and other groups but Turner said their appearances indicated concern rather than opposition.

Hoffman's amendment was designed to overcome objections, he said.

Shaw said that while his measure prohibits written solicitations "it does not prohibit a person from making an oral inquiry of a candidate's views on proposed legislation or other matters to come before the legislature."

Minor Leagues Optimistic About New Baseball Year

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Baseball's minor leagues are heading into their 20th post-World War II season, and their head man, Phil Piton, says, "We're optimistic."

"We feel we've turned the corner," he said, pointing to last season, when the minors showed their first over-all attendance increase since the baseball boom days immediately after the war.

Attendance dipped below 10 million in 1963 but went back over that figure last year.

Piton is president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues — the formal name for the minors — now comprising 10 leagues, with headquarters in Columbus. The line-up is virtually identical to last year's when 20 leagues operated, since two will merge to form this summer's Florida Rookie League.

Several circuits open their seasons this weekend, including the International, Pacific Coast, Texas, Southern and Carolina Leagues. Three member leagues in Mexico are already under way.

New cities in the minor league line-up include many trying baseball comebacks, such as Toledo, Vancouver, Amarillo, Montgomery and Newport News.

Dropouts from last season include Richmond, Dallas, San Antonio, Charleston, W.Va., and Macon.

Major league farm systems have resembled withering vines the last 15 years. There were more than twice as many minor leagues in 1950 as there are today. But the vines are still playing their same vital role — developing big league talent.

Despite signs of stability in minor league baseball, Piton concedes there are still big problems ahead. Next season, major league baseball moves into the Deep South — to Atlanta, now an International League city and not far from several Southern League cities.

Piton feels, however, that major league owners may soon end their rapid franchise-shifting.

Braves Edged By Piketon In Triangular

Logan Elm was edged by a half point in a triangular track meet won by Piketon yesterday at the Logan Elm field.

The difference in the meet came in the final event — the mile relay. The Braves placed second to Piketon in the event. Laureville had no team entered in the event.

The next meet for the Braves is Tuesday at Union.

CHS Baseball Team Opens SCOL Play

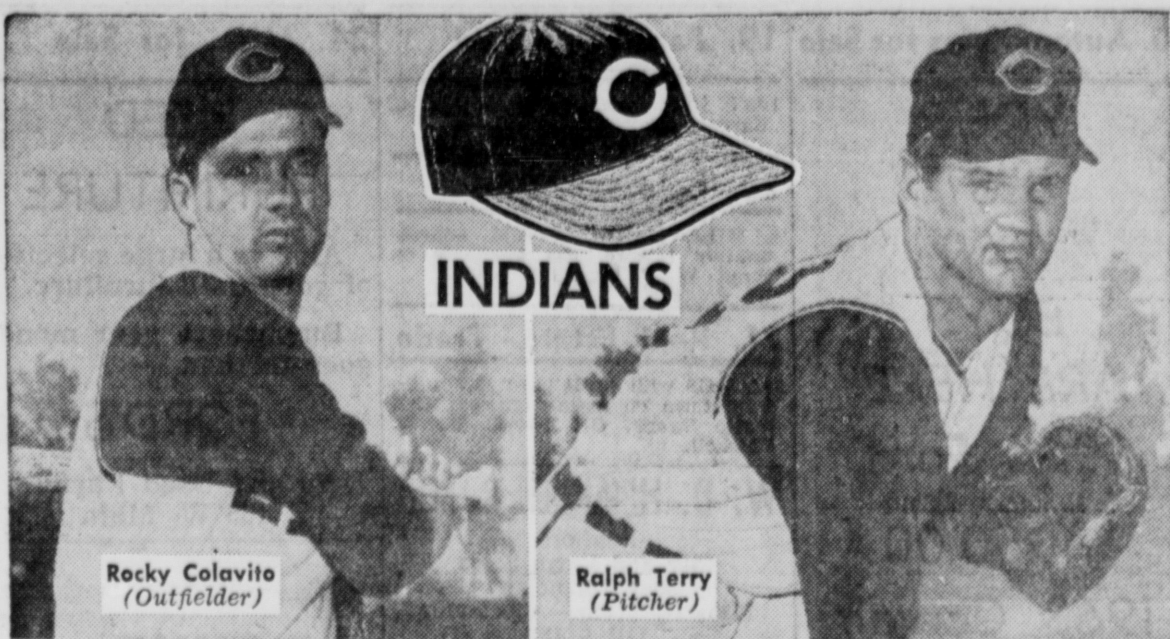

The Circleville High School baseball team opens the 1965 South Central Ohio League race today by hosting Greenfield McClain.

Dave Iery, a junior right-hander, has been named starting pitcher for the Red and Black.

Tomorrow Teays Valley High School will play here. Nick Nance, who played for the Vikings last year, will have the starting role.

A game with Miami Trace, originally scheduled Friday, has been changed to 1:30 p. m. Saturday because of the Good Friday holiday.

Circleville Coach Don Neff has rated Washington C. H. as probably the team to beat in the SCOL this year.

Terry Wins His Debut With Cleveland's Tribe

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The baseball season is just two days old, but Ralph Terry of the Cleveland Indians already has reached his prime goal.

Making his debut with the Indians, the 29-year-old right-hander pitched his first complete game since last July as he checked the Los Angeles Angels on four hits for a 7-1 victory Tuesday night.

It was an impressive start for the hero of the 1962 World Series who was traded away by the New York Yankees last October to complete the deal for Pedro Ramos and went to spring training with only one aim:

"I'd just like to win one game and go on from there."

But that wasn't all he said. He didn't directly point an accusing finger at the Yankees but said he felt they "gave up on me. When they did use me I got the job done. I thought I pitched well enough. But I think I could have worked a little more. I thought I had salvaged the job."

Terry, however, went off to the Indians, taking with him the memories of his 23-victory season in 1962 and obviously convinced that he was capable of producing a better record than last season's 7-11 mark.

Terry walked only one, struck out two and had a two-hit shut-out until the Angels pushed across a run in the eighth inning. At one stretch, he retired 14 batters in succession.

Elsewhere in the American League, Al Kaline drove in five runs in Detroit's 11-4 walloping of Kansas City and the Chicago White Sox made the most of Baltimore mistakes for a 5-3 victory over the Orioles.

Flood conditions postponed the New York-Minnesota game. Washington and Boston were not scheduled.

The Indians backed Terry's pitching with 12 hits, including a two-run homer by former Angel Leon Wagner. Larry Brown also drove in two runs, with a double and a single. Three errors by the Angels didn't help loser Fred Newman.

Al McBean is off and running — just when the San Francisco Giants thought they were.

McBean, the National League's Fireman of the Year in 1964, made his first relief appearance this season Tuesday night and preserved Pittsburgh's 5-2 victory over San Francisco.

His ninth-inning pitching stifled the Giants after they erupted for their first runs of the season in the previous inning.

It took Willie Mays to get San Francisco out of the scoreless rut that started with 10 innings against Pittsburgh in Monday's opener and lasted through 7-2-3 innings Tuesday night.

Following Matty Alou's bunt single, only the sixth hit off Bob Friend, Mays connected for his first home run and started the Giants on a rally that lasted into the ninth inning — almost.

With one out, Jim Hart and Jesus Alou singled, sending Fried into the clubhouse. Out of the bullpen came McBean, who made the same trip 58 times last year.

The 26-year-old ace promptly induced Tom Haller to hit into a double play and struck out pinch hitter Ed Bailey to earn his first save of 1965.

McBean posted 18 saves last season, which, coupled with eight victories in relief, brought him the title of Fireman of the Year. The Virgin Islands native lost only three times while com-

Perez Homer Is Key to Redleg Win

CINCINNATI (AP)—It is unusual to hear both the winning and losing managers express virtually the same feelings, but that is what happened after the Cincinnati Reds defeated Milwaukee 8-3 Tuesday night.

"It was steady, good pitching — and Tony Perez' grand slammer—which kept Sammy Ellis on the mound for us to win the game," Manager Dick Sisler said for the victorious Reds.

"It was that grand slam in the fifth which was the difference," said Manager Bobby Bragan of the Braves.

"But, I'm not too unhappy about that. It will not happen again off (Denny) Lemaster this season, I am certain," Bragan added.

The game left the series one-one as the Reds moved on to St. Louis for a one-week road trip, while the Braves return home.

Ellis, who pitched sensational relief ball in the latter part of last season to keep the Reds in contention, was happy — with reservations.

"Sure, I've been asking for the chance to start a game and naturally, I'm happy with the result.

For the rookie Perez, his home run was the first of his major league career. It broke open a tight game. With the Reds leading 4-3 and one out, Vada Pinson singled for one of his three hits and stole second.

Lemaster, in a relief role, walked Frankie Robinson and Deron Johnson to fill the bases.

Tiger Thinclads Lose to Cavaliers

Circleville High School's track team, running without the services of ace hurdler, Jim Wood, was defeated, by host school Chillicothe yesterday, 81-37.

Chillicothe's cindermen not only won 10 of the events in the meet, but also copped all places in the 100 and 220-yard dashes and the 880-yard run.

Circleville, on the other hand won the shot, the discus, tied for first in the high jump and won the low hurdles.

Mike Ramey heaved the 12-pound ball 47'3" to take first place in the shot. In the discus, Gene Smith had a heave of 120-feet 5-inches, while Mike Wells placed second and Tom Jenkins was third as the Tigers dominated the event.

DOUG PRICE tied with Chillicothe's DePugh in the high jump. Both boys cleared the bar at 5-feet 10-inches.

Howard Dade had the winning time of 22.9 in the 180 yard low hurdles.

Wood, who has a pulled leg muscle, will be out of competition indefinitely, according to Tiger track coach Jim Lint.

Lint also reported Doug Pontious sprained his ankle in the pole vault as he attempted to clear the bar at 12 feet.

Both Pontious and Wood are out for the rest of the week and possibly longer.

They will miss the meet at Greenfield McClain Thursday and also the Newark Relays Saturday.

Chamberlain Details Illegal Cage Offers

NEW YORK (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain, in the concluding article of a two-part series in Sports Illustrated, says he has been beleaguered by the pressures of basketball since his schoolboy days in Philadelphia.

The high-scoring star of the professional Philadelphia 76ers writes that he received several offers of illegal aid to change his mind about going to the University of Kansas, among them offers from "old grads of Dayton and Indiana."

Chamberlain also says he was harassed by agents from the Internal Revenue Service and the FBI, who were investigating reports of big money offers.

The 7-foot-1 center also continues his criticism of the National Basketball Association and suggests cutting the season from 80 games to 60, increasing the league to six teams in each division, and getting rid of what he calls the "bushville coaching system."

Chamberlain contends the shorter season would give the public better basketball; expansion would close the gap between the first- and last-place teams; and that wopping the practice of hiring ex-players and current players as coaches would give the public more confidence in those who run the game.

6 Major League Catchers Benched

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elston Howard of the New York Yankees has joined five other catchers sitting on the sidelines with the baseball season only two days old.

Howard's injury — a pulled muscle above the elbow of his throwing arm — will keep him out of action at least a week.

Howard was unable to lift his arm on the Yankees' plane when they left Minneapolis after the opening game Monday. An examination Tuesday disclosed Howard had re-injured the same muscle he had hurt during an exhibition set in Puerto Rico.

Other catchers currently sitting it out with various ailments are Bill Freehan of Detroit, Earl Battey of Minnesota, Jim Pagliaroni of Pittsburgh and Tim McCarver and Bob Uecker of St. Louis.

Veteran Jockey Dumped in Race

ALBANY, Calif. (AP) — Jockey Johnny Longden, 58-year-old rider who has won more races than any other in the horse racing profession, picked himself up off the Golden Gate Fields track Tuesday in time to see his mount finish first.

Bud 'N Bob, the 3-year-old which Longden was to pilot in the featured eighth race, stumbled at the gate and dumped Longden on the turf.

Longden evaded the flying hooves of other horses. He suffered a bruised hip.

Tomorrow Teays Valley High School will play here. Nick Nance, who played for the Vikings last year, will have the starting role.

A game with Miami Trace, originally scheduled Friday, has been changed to 1:30 p. m. Saturday because of the Good Friday holiday.

Circleville Coach Don Neff has rated Washington C. H. as probably the team to beat in the SCO this year.

West Leads Lakers' Win

Los Angeles Cops Western Playoff

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Cabin Creek Comet has led the Los Angeles Lakers into the championship playoff final of the National Basketball Association for the third time in four years.

The Cabin Creek Comet is Jerry West, who gained the moniker from his home town in West Virginia. He scored 42 points as the Lakers defeated the Baltimore Bullets 117-115 Tuesday night to win their best-of-7 Western Division final play-off, four games to two.

The Philadelphia 76ers beat the champion Boston Celtics 112-106 and forced the Eastern Division final play-off to a seventh and deciding game Thursday night in Boston.

A Baltimore turnout of 8,900 saw the 6-foot-3 West, a former All-America at West Virginia University, complete a sensational series against the Bullets and make good his prophecy that the Lakers would win in six games.

"West was fantastic throughout the series," said Fred Schaus, the Laker coach. "When Elgin Baylor was injured everyone in the league wrote us off, but we came through."

Baylor injured a knee early in the first game and underwent an operation, but West stepped into the breach and more than carried the load.

He scored 49 points in the first game of the series on April 3 and followed through with games of 52, 44, 48, 43 and 42 for a total of 278 points.

A Philadelphia crowd of 11,182 saw the 76ers take a 17-point lead at 61-44, then survive a Boston rally that put the Celtics within three points at 107-104 with 90 seconds left. Hal Greer's one-hander and a free throw by Chet Walker pulled the 76ers out of danger.

Big Wilt Chamberlain, hampered by five fouls, didn't score in the last quarter, but was high for the game with 30 points. Tom Sanders topped the Celts with 25.

West Leads Lakers' Win

Los Angeles Cops Western Playoff

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Cabin Creek Comet has led the Los Angeles Lakers into the championship playoff final of the National Basketball Association for the third time in four years.

The Cabin Creek Comet is Jerry West, who gained the moniker from his home town in West Virginia. He scored 42 points as the Lakers defeated the Baltimore Bullets 117-115 Tuesday night to win their best-of-7 Western Division final playoff, four games to two.

The Philadelphia 76ers beat the champion Boston Celtics 112-106 and forced the Eastern Division final playoff to a seventh and deciding game Thursday night in Boston.

A Baltimore turnout of 8,590 saw the 6-foot-3 West, a former All-America at West Virginia University, complete a sensational series against the Bullets and make good his prophecy that the Lakers would win in six games.

"West was fantastic throughout the series," said Fred Schaus, the Laker coach. "When Elgin Baylor was injured everyone in the league wrote us off, but we came through."

Baylor injured a knee early in the first game and underwent an operation, but West stepped into the breach and more than carried the load.

He scored 49 points in the first game of the series on April 3 and followed through with games of 52, 44, 48, 43 and 42 for a total of 278 points.

A Philadelphia crowd of 11,182 saw the 76ers take a 17-point lead at 61-44, then survive a Boston rally that put the Celtics within three points at 107-104 with 90 seconds left. Hal Greer's one-handed and a free throw by Chet Walker pulled the 76ers out of danger.

Big Wilt Chamberlain, hampered by five fouls, didn't score in the last quarter, but was high for the game with 30 points. Tom Sanders topped the Celts with 25.

TODAY In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Wednesday, April 14, the 104th day of 1965. There are 261 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1865, President Abraham Lincoln was sitting in his box in Ford's Theater, Washington, watching the play, "Our American Cousin." At 10:30 p.m. the door of the box opened silently and actor John Wilkes Booth fired a bullet into Lincoln's head. The President never regained consciousness.

On this date
In 1890, delegates to the Washington Conference of American States created what was to become the Pan American Union.
In 1912, the new ocean liner Titanic, on her maiden voyage from Liverpool to New York, struck an iceberg in the North Atlantic shortly before midnight. She sank at 2:27 a.m. Of the 2,000 persons aboard, only 700 were saved.

In 1931, King Alfonso of Spain went into exile and the Spanish Republic was proclaimed.

In 1945, simple funeral rites for President Franklin D. Roosevelt were held in the White House.

In 1945, American B29s bombed Tokyo and hit the Imperial Palace.

Ten years ago—the Russians agreed at the nuclear test ban talks in Geneva to a Western proposal for a research program on the problem of detecting nuclear explosions.

One year ago — Sen. Barry Goldwater won the Republican presidential preference primary in Illinois.

HST Deplores Quality of World Chiefs

NEW YORK (AP)—Harry S. Truman, 20 years after he became president, says he is bothered by conditions in a world without peace — and he places the blame on the world's leaders.

Truman spoke Tuesday night after receiving the 25th anniversary award of Freedom House. It cited him for decisive leadership which gave hope to a "battered world."

The bronze plaque was presented to Truman by Chief Justice Earl Warren who said of the former president: "He has furthered the cause of freedom not only in this country, but throughout the world."

The dinner was attended by 1,200 persons, including six former Truman Cabinet members.
In his acceptance speech, Truman, who will be 81 on May 8, said of the current global unrest and bloodshed:

"Of one thing we are certain. It is not the fault of any one people — or group of people. The fault lies with their leaders. "We have reason to hope that the solution will come from the people, who will make themselves heard and defy those who would lead them to strife and aggression. This — and a strong United Nations — are our main hope to avert another catastrophe."

LBJ Stages Parties To Sell Ideas

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, who was reported once as warning aides to avoid cocktail parties, has become Washington's most celebrated party-giver.

Tuesday night, for instance, Johnson arranged a White House doubleheader — a reception for supporters of the new education law, and a cocktail party for some 30 senators.

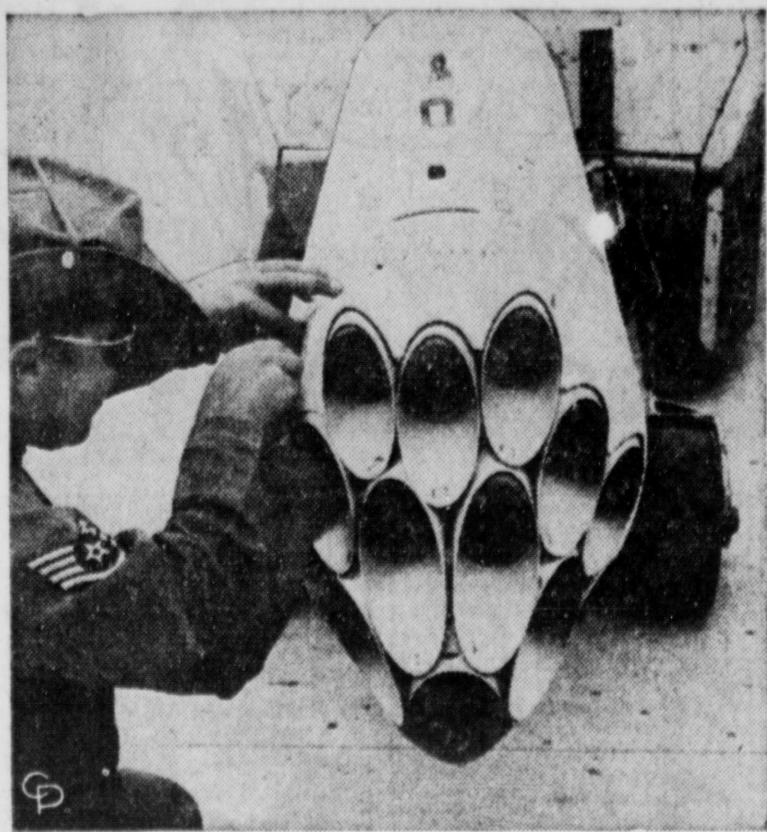

These were parties with a difference, however. More time and energy was devoted to serious talk than to eating and drinking.

Purposeful talk about affairs of state is the hallmark of most Johnson parties. The purpose is to win friends for administration policies.

Johnson is most persuasive when talking informally in a relaxed setting. That's why he likes to do business at parties.

The President knows, too, that an invitation to the White House is enough to make many people more receptive to what the chief executive has to say. He also knows some people become even more receptive if they get a drink along with a speech.

Other presidents have followed the same sure-fire formula, but perhaps none with such dedication as Johnson. This year he has been host at parties for every member of Congress, the governors of the states, mayors of the biggest cities and scores of businessmen, labor leaders, civil rights workers, educators and others.

Business Briefs

The Ohio Fuel Gas Co. will spend almost 3/4 million dollars this year to expand and improve underground storage and compressor station facilities to help provide more natural gas for present customers and assure adequate gas supplies for new customers, it was announced today.

Ohio Fuel supplies natural gas to Columbia Gas of Ohio which service this area. Both companies are part of the Columbia Gas System, Inc.

G. Ninde Lawson, Circleville manager for Columbia of Ohio, said 75 new storage wells will be drilled in existing underground storage areas and new compressor engines will be installed at three compressor stations.

Retail sales of Dodge cars in the second 10 days of March brought the 1965 calendar year total to a record-breaking 100,536, according to Dodge General Manager Byron J. Nichols.

The total is 17 per cent higher than the 86,102 sales in the same period of 1964 — which was the highest sales year in Dodge history, he said. Nichols noted that this is the third consecutive year that Dodge has set new sales records. Wes Edstrom Motors is the local agency.

State Official Is Appalled By Looters

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The No. 1 military man in Ohio is appalled by looters operating in the state's tornado zone.

Adj. Gen. Erwin C. Hostetler, Ohio Civil Defense chief, said Ohio National Guardsmen still were on duty in northeastern Ohio to give aid and prevent looting.

Hostetler said many motorists parked their cars along Interstate 75, where the tornado did some of its worst damage, and engaged in looting.

"You just wouldn't believe it unless you saw it," he said. He added that neighbors of victims "just couldn't do enough to help out, however."

Earlier, however, Highway Patrol officials said the patrol "very happily, had received no reports of looting," but were keeping a watch on the situation.

tem". He has been manager of South-Central's electronic data processing department since the company first installed the IBM equipment in April, 1964.

The conference, the first annual data processing and automation session, is sponsored by the NRECA Management Services. It is being held at the Sheraton-Chicago Hotel.

Watkins lives at Route 1, Groveport. He is employed at South-Central's Canal Winchester offices.

Red Cross Finds Housing Is Shunned by Evacuees

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Up and down the vast expanse of the Mississippi, the Minnesota and other rivers across this state, there are thousands of homes up to their door tops in flood water.

You look and try to imagine what you would do if it were your home, but most of all you wonder about whose home it is and where the occupants have gone.

So does the American Red Cross.

At each community where the rivers carve new beds through residential areas, the Red Cross and other agencies rush in with aid. They set up kitchens, first-aid stations and temporary housing facilities.

The food is accepted, mostly by dike builders, the first-aid stations are used only infrequently, the housing facilities almost never.

At Mankato the Red Cross set up 1,000 cots in a school gymnasium when authorities decided to evacuate residents in a threatened area of almost 6,000 persons. Only a handful of tired dike workers showed up to use them.

It's mostly the same story elsewhere. The Red Cross registers evacuees by the thousands, but when you look for someone with a story to tell, all you find is a card file.

There have been a few emergency evacuations, a few stories of families living in churches or other temporary shelter for some time.

But it seems that everyone in Minnesota has a relative or a close friend on high ground.

The evacuation of a community may come at midnight or in the middle of the night — when ever officials decide it's time to get the folks out. They are always orderly evacuations. Usually the residents have carted their belongings to second floors or attics before they leave.

The men or boys of a family forced out of its home usually can be found working on dikes — if they volunteer in time. At the most critical time of high water, a community generally has more volunteers than jobs for them to do.

The Civil Defense centers are always crowded. A few key personnel appear busy. The rest stand around. There's unemployment even among dike workers during high-water time.

Master Carver Finishes Model of Funeral Train

DOVER, Ohio (AP)—The funeral train that carried President Abraham Lincoln on his last journey has an ivory and ebony counterpart today, 100 years after his assassination. "I got it finished just in time," said Ernest (Mooney) Warther, who worked a year carving the scale model. "Now I can sit back and watch people enjoy it."

Warther, a master carver, put the finishing touches on the eight-foot-long model train Tuesday, beating by one day his self-imposed deadline of this anniversary of the Civil War President's death.

Lincoln was shot 100 years ago tonight by John Wilkes Booth in Ford's Theater, the first time a President's life had been taken in the nation's history. The train carried the slain President's body across the country to its final resting place in Illinois.

Work on the model began last April, though the idea was born many years ago when Warther, as a boy, adopted Lincoln as an ideal.

Warther indicated that a year is not very much time to turn out a life's masterpiece. He devoted at least 3,600 hours to the model, rising at 2 a.m. daily to put in 14-hour days of carving. Lincoln's funeral train, Warther said, was his last big project in half a century of carving. Carved in ebony and two kinds of ivory—elephant and hippopotamus—the train has 7,600 parts. It is complete to lamps and the dishes in the dining car.

The entire model, including a copy of Lincoln's personal 16-wheel car, will be added to Warther's collection of 54 model locomotives in a museum he keeps here. His models depict stages of railroad development. The funeral train, Warther said, is his tribute to one of America's great men.

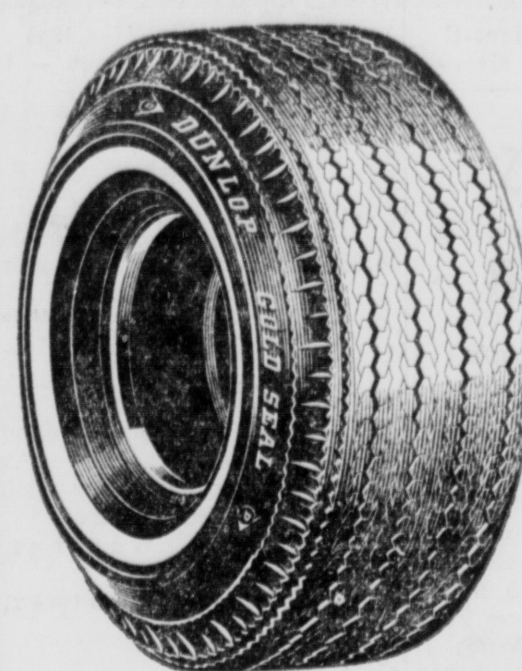

St. Philip's Church Schedules Services

There will be a celebration of Holy Communion 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at St. Philip's Episcopal Church. The Rev. William G. Huber will be celebrant.

Beginning noon Friday and extending through the Three Hours, there will be a service conducted by the Rev. Mr. Huber. Lay readers will assist. Soloists will be Lois Wittich, soprano, and Paul Dunkle, tenor. The service will be divided into 20-minute periods so that persons may come and go as they find it necessary.

King Arthur supposedly held tournaments near the site of Westminster Abbey.

Today is Wednesday, April 14, the 104th day of 1965. There are 261 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1865, President Abraham Lincoln was sitting in his box in Ford's Theater, Washington, watching the play, "Our American Cousin." At 10:30 p.m. the door of the box opened and actor John Wilkes Booth fired a bullet into Lincoln's head. The President never regained consciousness.

On this date
In 1890, delegates to the Washington Conference of American States created what was to become the Pan American Union.
In 1912, the new ocean liner Titanic, on her maiden voyage from Liverpool to New York, struck an iceberg in the North Atlantic shortly before midnight. She sank at 2:27 a.m. Of the 2,000 persons aboard, only 700 were saved.

In 1931, King Alfonso of Spain went into exile and the Spanish Republic was proclaimed.

In 1945, simple funeral rites for President Franklin D. Roosevelt were held in the White House.

In 1945, American B29s bombed Tokyo and hit the Imperial Palace.

Ten years ago—the Russians agreed at the nuclear test ban talks in Geneva to a Western proposal for a research program on the problem of detecting nuclear explosions.

One year ago — Sen. Barry Goldwater won the Republican presidential preference primary in Illinois.

HST Deplores Quality of World Chiefs

NEW YORK (AP)—Harry S. Truman, 20 years after he became president, says he is bothered by conditions in a world without peace — and he places the blame on the world's leaders.

Truman spoke Tuesday night after receiving the 25th anniversary award of Freedom House. It cited him for decisive leadership which gave hope to a "battered world."

The bronze plaque was presented to Truman by Chief Justice Earl Warren who said of the former president: "He has furthered the cause of freedom not only in this country, but throughout the world."

The dinner was attended by 1,200 persons, including six former Truman Cabinet members.

In his acceptance speech, Truman, who will be 81 on May 8, said of the current global unrest and bloodshed:

"Of one thing we are certain. It is not the fault of any one people — or group of people. The fault lies with their leaders."

"We have reason to hope that the solution will come from the people, who will make themselves heard and defy those who would lead them to strife and aggression. This — and a strong United Nations — are our main hope to avert another catastrophe."

LBJ Stages Parties To Sell Ideas

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, who was reported once as warning aides to avoid cocktail parties, has become Washington's most celebrated party-giver.

Tuesday night, for instance, Johnson arranged a White House doubleheader — a reception for supporters of the new education law, and a cocktail party for some 30 senators.

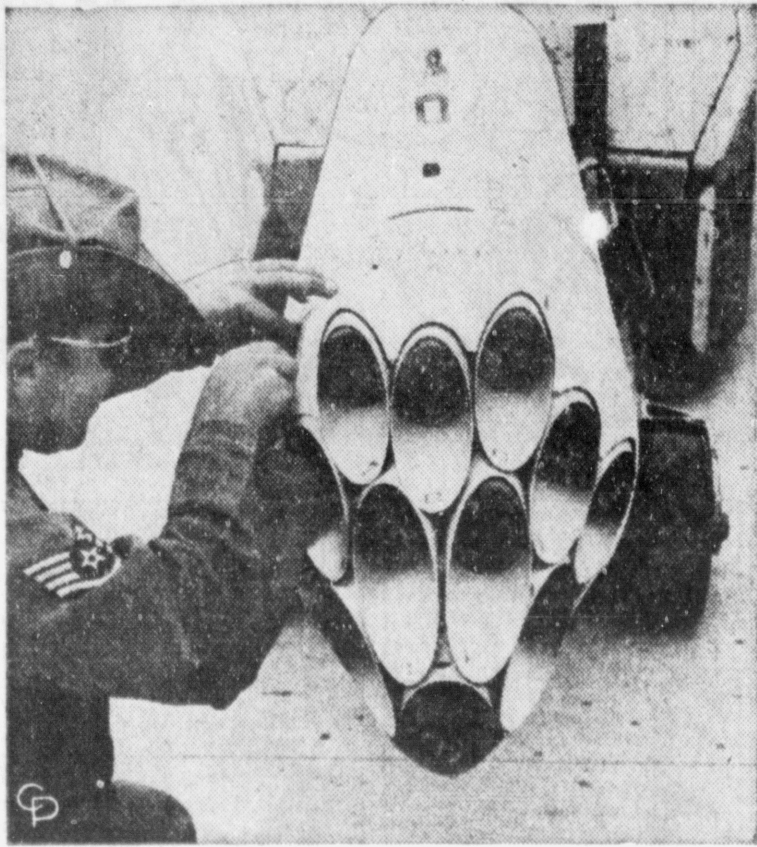

These were parties with a difference, however. More time and energy was devoted to serious talk than to eating and drinking.

Purposeful talk about affairs of state is the hallmark of most Johnson parties. The purpose is to win friends for administration policies.

Johnson is most persuasive when talking informally in a relaxed setting. That's why he likes to do business at parties.

The President knows, too, that an invitation to the White House is enough to make many people more receptive to what the chief executive has to say. He also knows some people become even more receptive if they get a drink along with a speech.

Other presidents have followed the same sure-fire formula, but perhaps none with such dedication as Johnson. This year he has been host at parties for every member of Congress, the governors of the states, mayors of the biggest cities and scores of businessmen, labor leaders, civil rights workers, educators and others.

The Ohio Fuel Gas Co. will spend almost 3/4 million dollars this year to expand and improve underground storage and compressor station facilities to help provide more natural gas for present customers and assure adequate gas supplies for new customers, it was announced today.

Ohio Fuel supplies natural gas to Columbia Gas of Ohio which service this area. Both companies are part of the Columbia Gas System, Inc.

G. Ninde Lawson, Circleville manager for Columbia of Ohio, said 75 new storage wells will be drilled in existing underground storage areas and new compressor engines will be installed at three compressor stations.

Retail sales of Dodge cars in the second 10 days of March brought the 1965 calendar year total to a record-breaking 100,536, according to Dodge General Manager Byron J. Nichols.

The total is 17 per cent higher than the 86,102 sales in the same period of 1964 — which was the highest sales year in Dodge history, he said. Nichols noted that this is the third consecutive year that Dodge has set new sales records. Wes Edstrom Motors is the local agency.

State Official Is Appalled By Looters

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The No. 1 military man in Ohio is appalled by looters operating in the state's tornado zone.

Adj. Gen. Erwin C. Hostetler, Ohio Civil Defense chief, said Ohio National Guardsmen still were on duty in northeastern Ohio to give aid and prevent looting.

Hostetler said many motorists parked their cars along Interstate 75, where the tornado did some of its worst damage, and engaged in looting. "You just wouldn't believe it unless you saw it," he said. He added that neighbors of victims "just couldn't do enough to help out, however."

Earlier, however, Highway Patrol officials said the patrol "very happily, had received no reports of looting," but were keeping a watch on the situation.

tem". He has been manager of South - Central's electronic data processing department since the company first installed the IBM equipment in April, 1964.

Red Cross Finds Housing Is Shunned by Evacuees

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—Up and down the vast expanse of the Mississippi, the Minnesota and other rivers across this state, there are thousands of homes up to their door tops in flood water.

You look and try to imagine what you would do if it were your home, but most of all you wonder about whose home it is and where the occupants have gone.

So does the American Red Cross.

At each community where the rivers carve new beds through residential areas, the Red Cross and other agencies rush in with aid. They set up kitchens, first-aid stations and temporary housing facilities.

The food is accepted, mostly by dike builders, the first-aid stations are used only infrequently, the housing facilities almost never.

At Mankato the Red Cross set up 1,000 cots in a school gymnasium when authorities decided to evacuate residents in a threatened area of almost 6,000 persons. Only a handful of tired dike workers showed up to use them.

It's mostly the same story elsewhere. The Red Cross registers evacuees by the thousands, but when you look for someone with a story to tell, all you find is a card file.

There have been a few emergency evacuations, a few stories of families living in churches or other temporary shelter for some time.

But it seems that everyone in Minnesota has a relative or a close friend on high ground.

The evacuation of a community may come at midday or in the middle of the night — whenever officials decide it's time to get the folks out. They are always orderly evacuations. Usually the residents have carted their belongings to second floors or attics before they leave.

The men or boys of a family forced out of its home usually can be found working on dikes — if they volunteer in time. At the most critical time of high water, a community generally has more volunteers than jobs for them to do.

The Civil Defense centers are always crowded. A few key personnel appear busy. The rest stand around. There's unemployment even among dike workers during high-water time.

Master Carver Finishes Model of Funeral Train

DOVER, Ohio (AP)—The funeral train that carried President Abraham Lincoln on his last journey has an ivory and ebony counterpart today, 100 years after his assassination.

"I got it finished just in time," said Ernest (Mooney) Warther, who worked a year carving the scale model. "Now I can sit back and watch people enjoy it."

Warther, a master carver, put the finishing touches on the eight-foot-long model train Tuesday, beating by one day his self-imposed deadline of this anniversary of the Civil War President's death.

Lincoln was shot 100 years ago tonight by John Wilkes Booth in Ford's Theater, the first time a President's life had been taken in the nation's history. The train carried the slain President's body across the country to its final resting place in Illinois.

Work on the model began last April, though the idea was born many years ago when Warther, as a boy, adopted Lincoln as an ideal.

Warther indicated that a year is not very much time to turn out a life's masterpiece. He devoted at least 3,600 hours to the model, rising at 2 a. m. daily to put in 14-hour days of carving.

Lincoln's funeral train, Warther said, was his last big project in half a century of carving. Carved in ebony and two kinds of ivory—elephant and hippopotamus—the train has 7,600 parts. It is complete to lamps and the dishes in the dining car.

The entire model, including a copy of Lincoln's personal 16-wheel car, will be added to Warther's collection of 54 model locomotives in a museum he keeps here. His models depict stages of railroad development.

The funeral train, Warther said, is his tribute to one of America's great men.
